Compounding Felony.
Books Too Dear.
Two Jobs for Ford.

There are laws against compounding a felony. If a man steals your money, and you pay him to bring it back, promising to say nothing about it, you are guilty of a crime.

Financial institutions, however, and concerns that issue insurance against loss by theft, forgery, etc., make a regular business of compounding felonies.

In New York recently, a young criminal named Pirie store $250 from a bank. The bank allowed him to go free, on his promise to pay in installments. That was compounding a felony, as well as committing a crime.

During his freedom this young man killed another boy named Nye.

Just as a public service the mother of that boy ought to sue the bank that compounded the murderer's felony. If the bank hadn't committed the crime of compounding that felony the murderer would hav ebeen in jail and his victim would not have been killed.

Winston Churchill says books cost too much. "Too much" is putting it mildly. A reader pays $2 for a book that can be manufactured for 20 cents, and for a really good book, such as "The Golden Bough," now published in two volumes, he pays $10 or more for what can be produced for $1.

When he gets around to it Henry Ford ought to start a book publishing business, and show publishers

VETERAN MINER DIES FROM GAS AS HE SAVES HIS COMRADES

Fire Sweeps Gold and Silver Shaft in Colorado.

27 MEN INJURED

Seven Rescuers are Overcome, But Are Brought Out.

NEDERLAND, Colo., Dec. 5.—All of the 20 miners entombed when fire destroyed the entrance to the Cardinal Gold and Silver mine here have been rescued, a check-up today showed.

Charles Herquist, 50 year old, a veteran miner, was the only one who lost his life. He died from gas he encountered when he went into the vapor-swept tunnel with the rescue party.

Rescuer Ignores Warnings.

Seven of twelve men who braved the poisonous gasses and brought out the imprisoned miners were overcome and were missing for a time. They were brought out early this morning.

Twenty-seven others, including Captain John E. Cutshaw of the Denver fire department, were gassed or injured. Cutshaw's condition is said to be critical.

Herquist gave his life in his efforts to rescue those imprisoned under the earth. He died at 2 o'clock this morning.

Time after time Herquist persisted in going back into the gas-filled tunnel, although he repeatedly was warned that vapors had become dangerous and that he might lose his life.

G. S. Thompson Given Injunction Against Toll House Erection

Common Pleas Judge James G. Moore, at Lisbon, yesterday granted George S. Thompson, local pottery manufacturer, an injunction restraining the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Company from the erection of a new toll house at the East Liverpool approach to the Chester-East Liverpool bridge.

The petition, which was filed by Lones, Hill & Davidson, asserts that the proposed toll house would deny the plaintiff ingress to his property, located in what is known as Thompson place. No time has been set for a hearing on the permanent order. Bond has been fixed at $200.

Sir James Barrie Refuses to Join Parade of Jazz

LONDON, Dec. 5. — Sir James Barrie will not join in the parade of jazz.

Sir James announces that he will take legal steps to prevent the production of one of his early plays—"Walker in London—as a musical comedy.

Julian Wylie, the Ziegfeld of England, who has "glorified the English girl," has acquired the rights to "Walker in London."

The play was written by Sir James Barrie more than 30 years ago and Sir James has no desire to have his past flaunted in his face dressed up in modern jazz fashion. It is believed that an agreement may be reached out of court.

EBERLE, NAVAL CHIEF, DEFENDS FATAL TRIP OF SHENANDOAH

Denies Lansdowne Was Ordered Against Wishes on Flight.

STAR WITNESS

Court-Martial Testimony Hits Col. Mitchell's Charges.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A flat denial that Commander Zachary Lansdowne had been ordered against his wishes on the fatal Shenandoah flight was given the court-martial of Colonel William Mitchell today by Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations.

Admiral Eberle stoutly defended the mid-western flight, which caused a loss of 14 lives.

"It was not a political flight. Lansdowne was not coerced by the department into risking his ship," Eberle said.

"Lansdowne had been given explicit instructions at a conference with me to use his judgment on all occasions."

A detailed account of the evidence leading up to the fatal flight, which Mitchell charged was evidence of bungling by non-flying officers, was given by the star prosecution witness.

Eberle explained that Lansdowne was originally opposed to the flight as scheduled because of fear that the Ford mooring mast at Detroit might not function properly.

Admiral Eberle admitted on cross-examination he had no documentary evidence that Lansdowne finally agreed to the flight as planned. "Lansdowne told me at a conference that he had no objections as the problems that caused him to recommend postponment had all been overcome."

"Commander Lansdowne would be alive today if you had not ordered him on his last flight would he not," Reid asked at the end of a severe examination.

"I do not care to answer that question," snapped Eberle.

WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

An unidentified woman, driving a horse and buggy, was struck by a "hit and skip" motorist on St. Clair avenue, near the city limits, at 10:45 o'clock this morning, according to a report received by the police.

The woman was thrown from the vehicle to the street. The driver of the car, said to have been either a Chevrolet or a Nash, sped away. Another motorist attempted to follow him but was outdistanced.

Patrolman McFarland watched for the driver in the Diamond but failed to locate him.

Motorists, Use Care During Yule Rush, Police Urge

Admonishing motorists to exercise unusual caution in threading through traffic in the early days of December, Chief of Police Hugh McDermott today stressed the importance of observing local regulations during the Christmas shopping rush.

Chief McDermott said that the shopping habits of people here have changed within the last few years and that downtown streets are nearly as crowded with Christmas shoppers in the two weeks immediately after Thanksgiving as in the pre-Christmas press.

He referred particularly to the fact that this is the season when greater numbers of children than normally are on the downtown streets.

CHESTER MAN TESTIFIES AT BOWDLER TRIAL

H. P. Grohardt, 80, Witness in Blue Sky Case.

OTHERS CALLED

Defense Motion to Examine all Records Overruled.

H. P. Grohardt, 80, said to be a resident of Chester, was the first witness called by the state of West Virginia in the prosecution of charges of violating the "blue sky laws" against A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and Gordon Ulyatt in connection with the collapse of a Wheeling financial concern, when the trial was resumed in the Ohio county courts in Wheeling, yesterday.

Grohardt identified letters and literature sent out by the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, of which Bowdler was president and Ulyatt, secretary, during its stock-selling campaign.

R. A. Blessing, of the attorney general's office, who is assisting in the prosecution of the case, read the minutes of meetings of the stockholders and directors of the insolvent company. At one of these sessions the directors adopted a resolution asking that Bowdler's bonding company be asked to make good losses sustained by the company. The resolution charged that Bowdler had "embezzled $10,000 of the funds of the company."

MARRIAGE OF QUADROON AND SCION OF WEALTHY STANDS, JURY'S VERDICT

Jurors Answer Six Questions in Kip's Annulment Suit in Favor of Daughter of Negro.

DID NOT CONCEAL COLOR IS RULING

Son of One of New York's Famous Families Fails to Appear to Hear Decision.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The jury found in favor of Alice Jones Rhinelander, the quadroon bride of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest and most noted families, it was revealed today when the sealed verdict handed in last night in young Rhinelander's suit to annul his marriage, was opened in supreme court here.

Separation Suit Planned.

Davis will bring immediate suit against Rhinelander for separation and support, he announced shortly after leaving the court room.

He asked Leon R. Jacobs, lawyer of record for young Rhinelander, to accept service of summons and complaint, but he refused until he had conferred with Judge Wills.

"They can never be together, and it is no more than right that Rhinelander should support her," said Davis.

The complaint will be abandonment.

The jury answered six questions of the seven given them in the colored bride's favor, leaving the seventh unanswered. It is presumed that under the law Judge Morschauser will render a decision that the marriage of Rhinelander and the daughter of a negro odd job man must stand.

The jury answered the questions submitted to them in the following manner:

1—At the time of the marriage of the parties, was the defendant colored and of colored blood?"Yes."

2—Did the defendant, by silence, conceal from the plaintiff the fact that she was of colored blood?—"No."

3—Did the defendant, before the marriage, present to the plaintiff that she was not of colored blood?—"No."

4—Did the defendant, practice such concealment or make such representations with the intent thereby to in-

It emphasizes those unseen and immortal factors which are a real part of man and which you cannot afford to neglect.

"The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age and Nature sink in years;
But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth,

The wrecks of matter and the crush of worlds."

A Bracelet Watch ought to be more than a pretty ornament. It should keep correct time. You can't place dependence in a Wrist Watch which is built to sell at a bargain price. Every wrist watch is called upon to take more punishment than any other kind of time-piece; each movement of your arm produces friction which it must withstand. Only the finest piece of machinery can stand up under constant friction. There are only a half dozen really dependable makes of Wrist Watches among the hundreds on the market. Buy the kind you can rely upon. This is really very much easier to do under the convenience of our CLUB PLAN of Extended Charge Accounts than to pay a so-called cash bargain price for an inferior watch. METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL By Edgar Poe Nobody WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

SIXTEEN.

Noble gave his head a vicious shake, suspecting that he was drunk, and afraid that he wasn't. Stunned by the surprise of coming upon such a scene, and befuddled by the liquor in his stomach, he stood staring at the pair seated below him. Damn! Right before his eyes! Laurel with her head resting upon David Gaines' shoulder, and one hand clasped in the youth's fingers. As one hypnotized, Noble watched Gaines run his hand caressingly back and forth across Laurel's forehead. The intensity of his gaze acted upon Gaines' intuition, and caused the youth to turn, startled.

"Mr. Harwood . . . Err . . . I'm afraid your wife is ill."

As he spoke Laurel, as if suddenly awakened, turned her head wearily toward her husband, then held out a hand to him. "I'm so sick, Noble." There was helplessness in her glance.

Her husband hesitated no longer but stepped forward and pulled her up to her feet. Glaring at Gaines, he exclaimed: "Why didn't you call for someone, you idiot! Here, take the other arm." He led the way down the stairs and toward the state room. They half carried, half dragged Laurel until Noble halted, picked her up like a child, and carried her unaided. "Call Dr. Warner," he said sharply to Gaines, who was following them.

Laying her prone upon a bed, he loosened her clothing, and began to fan her. Laurel looked at him through feverish eyes, and spoke weakly: "You shouldn't have been so rude to Mr. Gaines, dear. I fainted I think, and he was just excited—."

"I guess so! Never mind about that pup. Be quiet."

She was moaning softly when Dr. Warner came, followed by Gaines. Noble waved the doctor toward the bed and faced the youth, who was standing in the doorway, looking rather disturbed. "Thank you, Gaines. Seasick persons have to be relaxed." Noble's tone was bruskly apologetic.

"I—err hope she gets better," Gaines replied, begining to regain possession of himself.

"Yes, yes." Noble turned away. Dr. Warner came to meet him with a professional smile.

"Just a touch of mal-de-mer," said the physician. "I'll give her a sedative and she'll be comfortable, I think. Needs to be quiet a while, that's all."

"Not a good sailor," Noble laughed, feeling called upon to say something.

"The water is getting rather choppy and I don't think the other ladies are very comfortable, either."

When the physician had administered the sedative, Noble followed him to the companion way. "Thank you, Dr. Warner."

"Don't mention it. I must say, Mr. Harwood, that you have an uncommonly pretty wife."

Warmed, Noble smiled. "Naturally, I think so." He gave the physician a parting slap on the shoulder, and walked out upon the deck.

His legs were unsteady now and he sought support at the railing. The experience had shaken him, and his mind was in awhirl. That damned pup, Gaines! He could not get rid of the idea that Laurel was not too helpless to extract herself from such a compromising position. He wondered if anyone else had seen them there. Were they together when Laurel fainted? He remembered how attentive the youth was to Laurel at the Buckmaster dinner. He had not thought about it then. . . .

"Feeding the fishes?"

Noble turned Wingman, in trim uniform, resplendent with gold buttons and braided cap, was smiling at him sympathetically.

"Oh, no. . . . I'm feeling all right . . . I was just ah, enjoying the motion of the ship under my feet, and the view of the shore lights."

"I'm glad you didn't call it a boat. My pet aversion is the person who calls everything that floats a boat."

Noble didn't understand the import of Wingman's remark, he wasn't up on nautical distinctions. There was silence between them until he remarked, "Getting brisk, isn't it?"

"I'm afraid I chose a bad evening—the sea is running too strong for landsmen. Out of deference to the ladies, I'm putting in."

Noble was glad when his host proceeded toward the bridge; he wanted to be alone.

Captain Wingman set his guests ashore at the private wharf of the Oyster Sound County club half an hour later. Laurel revived as soon as she got her feet upon level ground, as did most of the women guests. Charley Buckmaster led the way to the clubhouse pulling his wife along and growling, "Rotten sailors—what an awful bunch of rotten sailors."

"Now, Charles," Mrs. Buckmaster said quietly. "The ladies couldn't saturate themselves with liquor until they were immune." The others laughed, and Charley was quiet.

Th eparty took possession of one of the parlors, and Letty Alster began to bang a piano. Two couples swung into a dance. Laurel cuddled up close to Noble on a lounge. "I'm cold."

He placed his arm around her. "I love this gown," he said, running his free hand over the material.

Laurel's hands dropped limply to her side. "I'm glad I have things now that you like."

They sat silently watching the others. Noble was thinking of Laurel with her head resting on David Gaines' shoulder. In Laurel's mind was a vision of the dark-eyed mannequin who wore all of the dresses Noble selected; gowns worn by other mannequins he had passed up completely.

"May I have this dance with you?"

They looked up at David Gaines. "I'm rather tired," Laurel suggested. She looked quickly toward her husband.

Noble had not gotten up. "If you like," he said.

Laurel hesitated, then looked toward the other dancers and was imbued suddenly with energy. She got up and took Gaines' hand.

Damn! Noble's glaring eyes followed them out amidst the gyrating couples. His gaze did not miss a motion they made as he sat stiffly upright throughout the dance. As the impromptu pianist paused momentarily to light a cigarette, he leaped up and went to his wife, taking her from Gaines by offering his arm.

"We're going home," he said hoarsely.

He meant Central City.

Cold Days—HOT Motors

The weather has little effect upon the operating temperature of your motor. It may be freezing outside, yet within the engine's combustion chamber, the temperature is approximately 2000° F., as usual.

Why, then, should you use some special motor oil in winter? Isn't it necessary that at all times you use the oil highest in heat resisting properties—one that is never doctored at the expense of its protective properties?

FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil has a heat test 100 degrees higher than ordinary oils. It is refined from 100% Pennsylvania Crude by specialists of 46 years experience. Continue to ask for it by name.

Shop Early For Auto Licenses

Christmas shopping for 1926 automobile licenses in Ohio was ushered in today.

Practicing as well as preaching "Shop Early" and "Mail Early," in keeping with the nation-wide movement to prevent last-minute rushes to fulfill Yuletide needs, Chalmers Wilson, head of the state automobile license bureau, has shipped the first allotment of the new tags to East Liverpool as well as to other sections of Ohio.

Deputy Automobile Commissioner J. S. Hilbert and his co-workers today began issuing the licenses to patrons who have a recorded bill of sale and whose machines appear on the Columbiana county tax list.

Four thousand plates—their numbers rang from 240,401 to 244,440—in the chocolate and white color combination are available, and while the law does not permit their use until New Year's Day car owners are urged to buy now.

Put your automobile license requisition on your "Early Shopping" list.

Corn

Too much corn again. A bumper crop of 3,000,000,000 bushels, which ought to bring rejoicing, brings grief to many farmers. The price of this grain, which a year ago was as high as wheat usually is, has dropped half a dollar a bushel. So we have again the odd situation of a great crop valued at less than a small crop might be. The surplus drags down the price of all the rest. The tail wags the dog.

It isn't so bad, though, as it might be. Corn still brings enough to pay most farmers for the cost of raising it. The big majority of farmers, too, use their own corn, and in such cases the price doesn't make much practical difference.

The present situation will increase this consumption of corn right on the farm that produced it. Corn is used mostly to feed to cattle and hogs. Hogs are high enough to make corn pay in the form of pork. Farmers therefore will raise more hogs next year. They will also plant less corn next year. So they will get their corn money out of hogs, and the next corn crop will probably bring more per bushel.

Traffic Engineering

"In every community in the United States," says the American Engineering Council, "the traffic problem is acute in some form. The country is just beginning to realize that the problem is essentially an engineering problem."

So the engineers are going to get busy on it. Thirty national and local societies connected with the central council are going to study the whole situation and try to work out a solution.

It is a little late for the engineers to tackle the problem created by the motor car, but their aid is welcome. The police, as the engineers remark, have "reached their limit of accomplishment." It is only in part a policemen's job. Fundamentally it is an engineering job. Traffic must be properly routed before it can be properly policed.

Thoroughfares and their connections have to be provided. In many cases it means such a changing and widening of traffic lanes as will involve almost the rebuilding of cities.

The changes, needless to say, will be expensive. But when they are once made, communities can start growing freely again, as the traffic which is their life-blood moves through their arteries and veins without obstruction, and all the community's organic functions resume their natural action.

Corporation Owners

It is still customary in this country to speak of "the trusts" or "the corporations" as if they represented some mysterious and dreaded super-power, wielded by a few very rich men. But today this is little more than a tradition.

Who owns the corporations? Take the public utility corporations alone, of whose ownership and control Americans have been particularly jealous. The latest inquiry shows that their securities are held by 7,000,000 people. Omitting the railroads, public utilities with a capital of $20,000,000,000, as great as our national debt, are held by that number of citizens. If each investor represents an average family, it means that about one-third of the nation shares the ownership of these "trusts."

Nearly 1,000,000 people own the capital stock of the railroads, and their bonds are held by more than that number.

We hear little more of "bloated bondholders," because nearly everyone today knows bondholders that are not bloated in any sense.

The old symbol of a corporation was a fat plutocrat in a dollar-marked suit. The new symbol may be a workman entering a bank with his pay check.

Twelve high departmental chiefs of the Russian government have been shot for embezzlement. In American public life we sometimes get as far as hanging the jury in such cases.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. — There is a Turkish bath not far from the slate-gray shadow of the Tombs that is an underworld hang-out. Criminals go there to recuperate from drug and drink orgies that usually follow their crimes.

Perhaps they feel secure because a key circling their wrists is the only link with the outside world. Too, in the various rooms they are free to discuss crimes finished and to be done. They are in touch with dream pedding dope sellers if they want to continue the debauch.

A stranger is told gruffly the place is filled. There are said to be many secret exits in case a prospective patron has the aura of Central office. The only time it was ever successfully raided by police was by a ruse. A supposedly alcoholic patron got into the dressing room.

He was denied admission to the bath and asked to use the telephone to call up another bathhouse. A detective awaited there. "This is Bill Randall. Got room for me over there?" he inquired. "Bill Randall" was the code for "Send the reserves." The place was surrounded and 12 criminals trapped.

But the man they wanted escaped by merely girding his loins with a towel, the distinguishing mark between rubber and patron. The Turkish Bath is in other ways a focal point of interest for the police, even in more perfumed purlieus.

Almost daily some man reported missing to the police is found sleeping off a bout with rum in a public bath. Men who decide to vanish for one reason or another often spend two or three days in a bath, so obvious trails will cool before they make a big get-a-way.

For one reason or another — prohibition as usual gets the blame—there is a large increase of Turkish and Russian baths in the past five years. The rubber, despite the perspiring nature of his toil, is almost invariably obese.

Arnold Rothstein is reputed to be New York's heaviest plunging gambler. There are many stories of his coolness with thousands at stake. Once, it is said, that in a dice game with the famous Nick the Greek more than one hundred thousand dollars were involved in the turn of the cubes. Rothstein's usually pallid face wore its customary immobility. Those standing close say a faint mustache of perspiration appeared on his upper lip—that was all. He dresses in quiet colors and his eyes have the glint of of cool steel. Now and then he appears in a cafe and always jockeys himself to a seat with his back to the wall. Enemies are reputed to have put a price on his head many times. Of late Rothstein has conducted a successful insurance business.

Bald Jack Rose is a gambler who ran to penny-dreadful type. He had a cool, insolent smile. His head resembled a gleaming, mammoth billiard ball. For years he apparently walked alone in the dark lanes of the Forties, but behind him was a body-guard, ready to aid in emergency. Bald Jack came a cropper in the Rosenthal gambling murder, and Broadway sees him no more. He was last heard of as an itinerant hot gospeler.

A noted comic artist has been so frequently humiliated by an imposter he has appealed to the police. The rascal in tattered clothes has been frequenting cafes and posing as the artist. He is able to sketch hurriedly several of the artist's cartoon characters. Then he borrows money on the plea he has been on a drunk. He passes out I. O. U's on cards which bear the artist's printed name. The artist is absolutely abstemious, but some $400 worth of I. O. U's have been sent to him with polite entreaties to return the loans. In each case he has hunted out the creditor who sees immediately he has been duped, but the artist has insisted upon making the loan good.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Football Development.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Another season of intercollegiate football, the manly sport of mayhem, is completed, and students and coeds have relaxed into a state of semi-composure after one of the most thrilling seasons on record.

It was largely a succession of upsets and surprises, of momentary flashes of brilliance by underdogs and of temporary incompetence by leaders. Harvard held Yale to a scoreless tie; Yale bowed to Princeton; Illinois and Grange smashed Penn; Michigan massacred Navy; Northwestern nosed out Michigan; Kansas defeated Missouri; Standford walloped California; Dartmouth smothered Cornell.

All of these were upsets in one way or another. If the result was expected in some cases it was not expected to be decisive, as in the case of the Michigan-Navy, and Dartmouth-Cornell struggles.

Penn, the powerful, after downing Yale, met an unlooked for whirlwind in Zuppke's Illini, and thereafter spent a colorless season. Michigan met the long suffering Northwestern, suffered its only defeat and experienced the only score tallied against it all season.

Harvard, after a miserable season, held the touted steam roller of Yale to nothing, while Princeton, an outside team at the beganning of the season crushed that same Yale eleven when the Elis ruled the decided favorite.

Missouri, after a brilliant season and a victory over Nebraska—conqueror of Notre Dame—lost its final game to its traditional rival, Kansas, which had spent a mediocre season.

Stanford realized an ambition of many years' standing by taking California's measure, while the deluges of touchdowns in the Michigan-Navy, and Cornell-Dartmouth games were unlooked for.

With this series of surprises the tide of intercollegiate football enthusiasm reached a high water mark never before attained by the sport. Unparalleled crowds watched games that attracted the interest of the nation, while everywhere the presumptious program of stadium building is being rushed, indicating that even greater interest will be manifested in the future.

Again, this remarkable series of upsets showed that the West, for years held as inferior by the East, had established itself as a football entity. For years the Big Three, the Service teams, and the rest of the East have been considered, by the nation as a whole, as being the leaders in intercollegiate football. But in 1925 Dartmouth, and Dartmouth alone, of al the eastern teams, loomed impressively in an intersectional game. Her defeat of Chicago was impressive. True, Penn beat Chicago, but the victory was not impressive, and the Illinois game at Philadelphia was an overwhelming triumph for the West. And then there was the Michigan-Navy slaughter.

Game Being Nationalized.

The 1925 season showed also that the game is becoming nationalized. Although baseball is the national game, it never has had the flavor that football possesses. Intersectional games have brought this about and now the eastern and western football fans follow the fortunes of each other's favorites with interest. Where the big leagues hold unquestioned supremacy in professional baseball, there is no section or conference in intercollegiate football that can claim this unquestioned superiority. The game has become too much of a national affair, with a fair standard of equality for all concerned.

It is perfectly natural that, until recently, the East should have had the leadership in football, for in the East intercollegiate games first put in their appearance.

About 1840 football, in a crude form, made its debut at Harvard, Yale, and Princeton. At Harvard and Yale it took the form of intermural rushes between the two lower classes, but at Princeton it was played under a well-balanced system of rules that resemble the modern intercollegiate rules.

Meanwhile a similar game had sprung up at Rutgers and as a result Princeton and Rutgers met, November 6, 1869, in what was the first intercollegiate football game in America. This antedates by two years the first one played in England—that between Cambridge and Oxford in 1872.

During the next few years Princeton, Rutgers and Columbia played regular schedules of games. Yale appeared as a competitor in 1872 and Harvard in 1874. In 1876 Columbia, Harvard, Yale, and Princeton met in convention and formed the American Intercollegiate Football association, which adopted an amended form of the Rugby Union rules as the common playing code. This association lasted until 1894 when almost all the colleges and schools of the country had adopted the game.

Since the adoption of the Rugby Union rules the game has been in a continual state of change. Although basically it is still Rugbian, it has evolved until it is a distinct type, so many original features having been introduced.

Professional Teams Appear.

Today hundreds of colleges and thousands of schools play the intercollegiate game, while the recent appearance of professional teams further increases the number of organizations that use its rules.

With the shifting of the center of population toward the West the East began to lose its grip on football leadership. In 1894, although every college in the nation that was worth considering had adopted the game, the big eastern schools weer supreme because of their numerical superiority and experience.

But with the rapid increase in population and the appearance at middle western and western schools of thousands of students, football material became abundant and it was only a question of time until the country west of the Alleghenies would produce teams capable of coping with the best ones along the seaboard. The year 1925 marked the greatest advance in this tendency, which is nationalizing the game.

Football, like every other sport, found its inception in ancient times. The Greeks played a form of the game which was called harpaston. The Romans played a similar game which was known as harpastum, while the first travelers to the Polynesian islands found the natives playing with a football made of bamboo fibres. The Eskimos played with a moss filled leather ball, while Italy, during the middle ages played a game called calico which was a prototype of the modern football game.

As early as 1175 England makes mention of the game, when an ancient writer vividly describes a contest taken part in by the boys of London. The sport later became so popular that many kings issued edicts forbidding its play because it was imperilling the warlike pastime of archery. Edward 11 forbade it under pain of imprisonment, while Henry VI bluntly proclaimed that "na man shall play at fut ball.'

Nevertheless the game survived and by 1800 England had several specialized types of play. At one time there were hundreds on either side and the game was a general melee, played over vast areas sometimes miles in extent, but it was gradually modified until smaller groups of players came into vogue.

Its popularity in England is illustrated by a game played at Glasgow in 1913. This contest, an international affair between England and Scotland attracted 127,300 people.

With the rapid growth of the game in the United States it is not unreasonable to believe that this mark will be equalled and passed. Eighty-odd thousand watched the Illinois-Ohio State game this year, and with the building of gigantic stadiums more will be admitted at the colorful clashes. The 1925 season pointed to this with its tremendous interest and the crowds that followed it.

BAD WIRING IS BLAMED FOR FIRE

Defective wiring in an automobile is believed to have been the primary cause for the fire which yesterday burned down a garage in Beech street, owned by Joseph Smith, and also destroyed two automobiles, one, a Cleveland Six, belonging to Smith, and another, a Ford, owned by F. E. Connor.

Firemen saved an adjoining garage which, for a time, was threatened. The fire at the Smith garage had gained such headway that it was almost impossible to check it after it had been discovered.

Dog, Stars in Screen Play at American

Rin-Tin-Tin, Wonder

"The Clash of the Wolves," the Warner Bros. classic of the screen, which is opening at the American theatre on Monday for a three-day engagement, is a Charles A. Logue story of the cattle country of the Sierras, and was written especially for its star, Rin-Tin-Tin, the popular dog actor.

Lobo, leader of the wolf pack, is driven down from the forests by a terrifying fire and because of the danger to the cattle and ranchers, a price is put upon his head. Young David Weston (Charles Farrell), while working on his borax claim, extracts a thorn from the wolf's foot, and Lobo becomes his staunch friend and protector.

NEW QUESTION IS SUGGESTED IN NYE FIGHT

Is North Dakota Senator-designate State Officer.

COURT MAY RULE

Seating of Appointee Brings Income Tax Issue to Head.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The United States supreme court may be called upon to settle the question whether a United States senator is a federal or a state officer, it was learned today, as a result of issues raised in the effort to prevent the seating of Senator-designate Gerald P. Nye, (R., of N. D.)

The seating of Nye, now conceded by administration leaders, on the ground that Governor Sorlie of North Dakota was empowered to fill vacancies in "state offices" it was said, will bring to a head two issues. These will be wether the government has the right to collect income taxes from members of congress, if they are "state officers," and second, whether they will ebcome subject to the "recall" laws now existing in various states.

The income tax question has smouldered in the senate and house for many years but the Nye case apparently has brought it to life. Under a decision of the supreme court in 1870 it was held the Tenth Amendment of the Constitution prohibited the federal government from collecting any income taxes from the salaries of state officers. If the senate should decide that Nye was a "state officer," it was pointed out, a test case could be raised against further payment of income taxes.

To date, members of congress have paid something like $1,300,000 into the federal treasury in income taxes upon their salaries since the first incost tax was levied in 1913. From 1918 to 1922, it was said, this tax averaged $200 a year for senators and congressmen, but only $90 a year since the Longworth-Simmons bill was passed in 1924.

Rhinelander Loses

duce the plaintiff to marry her?—"N."

5—Was the plaintiff, by such concealment or by such representatione, or by both, induced to marry the defendant—"No."

6—If the plaintiff had known the defendant was of colored blood, would he have married her?—"Yes"

7—Did the plaintiff co-habit with the defendant after he had obtained knowledge that the defendant was of colored blood.—Not answered.

Bride and Kin Smile.

Rhinelander was not in court when the verdict against him was read. Former Judge Isaac N. Mills, his chief counsel, said that his client had heard the report that was circulated early today that the jury's findings were not favorable and that he did not want to appear in court and hear them.

Mrs. Rhinelander sat motionless and expressionless in her chair in the court room for a few minutes following the reading of the jury's report. Her father and mother and sisters, sitting around her, exchanged smiling glances.

Justice Morschauser entered the crowded court room at exactly 10 A. M. As he took his place, County Clerk George Ellroot handed the verdict to Clarence E. Pletsch, foreman of the jury, who corroborated its accuracy. It was then given to Justice Morschauser, who read the questions over to himself and then announced that the slightest attempt at a demonstration when the answers were read would result in prosecution for contempt of court.

"I want you to know that this is no circus," Justice Morschauser said. "The court officers will see that no one moves when the questions have been read."

The tomb-like silence that followed the reading of the verdict was broken only by the scramble of reporters for telephones and telegraph wires.

Defense Thanks Jurors

When the court finished reading the question and answers, Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Rhinelander, asked that the entire list be read to each juror.

This was done, and each in turn answered unhesitatingly.

The only sign that Mrs. Rhinelander gave of the tension under which she was laboring was a nervous wringing of her hands.

Lee Parsons Davis, her attorney, rose to his feet, following the questioning of the jury.

"May I, in behalf of the defense, express my appreciation?" he askd.

The jurors nodded to him.

The court had something to say also at this time.

"I want to thank the jury for its patience in this case," said Judge Marschauser. "I have arranged with the commission of jurors that you will not be called to serve for a year, that is unless you want to serve.

"Some people think this trial has been a strain on me, but it has not. I have been fresh every day."

Motion To Set Aside Verdict.

The jury was then excused and Judge Mills made the customary motion that the court set aside the verdict as contrary to the weight of evidence. The aged lawyer, plaintly perturbed, was permitted to argue the motion at once.

Justice Morschauser, after listening to Mills' arguments, announced that he would take under advisement the motion to set the verdict aside.

how to make money without charging 10 times what a book costs.

Where would Ford be with his automobiles if he charged $3,000 for a runabout?

If you have an inventive mind, Mr. New, the postmaster general, would like you to invent a flying machine for carrying mails that will not collect moisture, turning to ice, loading down the machine in the cold upper air.

Mr. Mayo, Henry Ford's chief engineer, should settle that problem. The heat wasted in the exhaust of the Henry Ford all-metal monoplane might be used to keep the outer layers of metal free of ice.

It was Amos Cummings on the New York Sun in Charles A. Dana's time, who said: "If a man bites a dog that is news."

In Alsace a rabbit has just shot a man, and that also is news. A. De Mouche, a farmer, laid his gun on the ground to take a rabbit from the trap. Another rabbit, dashing from the bushes, stepped on the trigger and De Mouche crawled home with a full load of shot in his back. How that would interest the rabbits of the world. But they can't read.

Thanks to Locarno, western Europe thinks that peace has come, and the question now is: What will western Europe do with the peace?

The first thing should be to cut the cost of keeping ready for war—since war is not expected.

France could take half a million men off the public payroll and put them to work at useful production, instead of marching around in clothes paid for by the people, eating food paid for by the people.

Poland also could get rid of a few hundred thousand soldiers fed by the workers. But Poland has Russia to worry about, and Russia is no partner to the Locarno treaty.

Gronnager, in charge of the securities department of the state auditor's office in the fall of 1922, relating to the organizing of the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, were also submitted. Inasmuch as Bachmann is now United States senator from West Virginia, he is not entitled to subpoena. Gronnager, however, was on the stand when court adjourned last evening.

H. A. Abbott, state banking commissioner, who took charge of the company affairs after the receiver was requested, identified letters written by him to the assistant state banking commissioner. Hayes Picklesimer, of the banking commission's office, testified to making an examination of the affairs of the company after which the books and papers were turned over to the Dollar Savings and Trust company, receivers.

An effort by the defense counsel to have all records of the company examined, was defeated. Judge Ritz ruled that only such records which were introduced as evidence in the case were accessible to the defense.

Taking of testimony was resumed at 9:30 o'clock this morning. From all indications the case will likely go to the jury before the middle or latter part of next week.

listed their machines for taxation. The motorist must make affidavit to the the truth of statements in the application. A registration fee of 15 cents is charged for each pair of plates.

Because of the clerical work which is necessary in issuing licenses, automobile owners are requested to apply immediately in order to avoid congestion during the last few days of the year. Commissioner Hilbert has warned that only a limited number of plates can be issued each day and that many owners will be without their new license plates on January 1, if they defer their applications.

Licenses will cost only one-half of the fee charged last year. The rates for pleasure cars are $4 for the smaller type, $6 for the medium-sized machines and $10 for the high-powered cars. The rates for motor trucks are based upon their weight.

Collections from the sale of licenses here during 1925 amounted to $53,747.98. Of this sum, $38,195 was received from pleasure car licenses, which numbered 4,817; $14,276.54 from trucks, which totalled 724; $52.55 from five trailers; $35.04 from 36 motorcycles, and $22.52 from 16 sidecars. This is a total of $52,631.65. The remaining $1,116.33 was brought in from transfers, which netted $1,017.33; duplicate tags costing $71, and 28 certificates costing $28. The average cost of each pair of licenses issued last year was $9.40.

A. Fuel was so scarce in France that during the winter of 1917-18 the amount of coal allowed to domestic consumers was approximately 11 kilos, or 24 pounds, per month.

Q. What is the size of this year's apple crop? C. A. S.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the total crop this year will reach 164,000,000 bushels, compared with 179,000,000 bushels last year. The decrease in total production, however, is partially offset by the fact that the crop is of unusually fine quality, and less than the usual proportion will go to waste or be used for manufacturing purposes. The portion known as the commercial crop will reach 30,134,000 barrels compared with 28,587,000 barrels last year.

Q. Why are more radio programs broadcast at night? Is it because radio works better then? C. F. L.

A. Fine programs are given in daytime, but the most important musical programs are broadcast at night because at this time it is possible for the greatest number of people to enjoy them. Also, the electric waves travel farther in the dark than in the day time.

Q. What was a gorget, worn by warriors? J. R. A.

A. It was a piece of armor protecting the junction of the helmet and cuirass. It was worn at the close of the 17th century.

Q. What is meant by the expression, "to be sent up Salt River?" A. C. B.

A. To be sent up Salt River (or Creek) or to row up Salt River (or Creek) is a slang expression meaning to be defeated or to fail in anything; especially applied to political candidates who fail at elections, with a supposed reference to a small stream in Kentucky.

Q. Did the United States pay France for the trenches used during the war? J. C. S.

A. The War Department says that the United States has never paid to the French government, or to a French citizen for the occupation of trenches in the battle line. The rumors in regard to this matter have probably originated from the fact that the United States rented ground for training purposes, and paid a certain amount of damages to property when training trenches were constructed.

Mexico still prefers American moving pictures and recent efforts of German, French and Sapnish producers to win favor there brought little success.

FAMOUS SALOON ERECTED ON MINE

Prospectors Find Two Veins in Basement.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—"The Gold Mine" might well have been the name of the old Con Call saloon in the Burns property of the Nuesta Ventura company back in the nineties during the heyday of the Cripple Creek mining boom for, after 35 years, it has been found that the basement of the once famous grog shop was a veritable find, though none knew it at the time.

Recently two venturesome prospectors, Edward Annette and his son, Edward Annette, Jr., were probing around the old basement site and ran across what they believe a highgraders' cache.

They found pieces of high-grade ore showing free gold in the refuse. Cleaning out the place to recover the ore they threw aside pieces of glass, brass door knobs and utensils of the saloon trade and the deeper they dug the more gold they discovered.

The first pieces of ore found showed bubbles of free gold on the surface, apparently having been roasted. This was believed to have been done when the saloon burned down several years ago.

The free gold first attracted the attention of the prospectors. Samples of the ore show values ranging from $8 in the wall rock to 600 ounces in the vein core. A shipment of 110 pounds sent to a sampler settled for 45.48 ounces gold to the ton.

Bedrock was struck but ore continued and the prospectors discovered that the former refreshment parlor had been built over the junction of two well-defined veins. Preparations are now being made for sinking of a shaft and continuing operations "at the old stand."

COUNCIL HERE MEETS MONDAY

Annual Report Will be Presented by Mayor Frank Albrecht.

Lisbon village council will hold its last meeting for 1925 Monday night.

Councilmen elected at the November election will take their seats at a meeting to be held Monday evening, January 4.

Mayor Frank E. Albrecht, Democrat, who was elected two years ago will be succeeded by Robert P. Clark, Republican, who was elected November last, and who by virtue of his office will preside at all future council meetings.

A caucus of the new councilmen-elect is proposed at an early date, which will include Mayor-elect Clark.

George Groves, who was elected marshal in November will be named Chief of Police of Lisbon by Mayor Clark, and he will succeed Dave Eells who has been serving in this capacity since the resignation of Chief of Police H. L. Lewton several months ago.

Councilmen-elect at their proposed caucus plan to discuss a line of policy that will be followed during 1925 and 1927. It is said that the new council will give particular attention to the Lisbon street situation next year, and it has already been stated that a number of streets will be given the repair that has been lacking. North Market and Washington strets will come in for first attention.

Mayor Albrecht is expected to present his annual report at the meeting Monday night.

Lloyd C. Binsley, who has been serving as clerk will continue in office as he was re-elected in November.

AUTO ACCIDENT RESULTS IN SUIT

As a result of an automobile accident on the Patterson road in Mahoning county at 8:30 o'clock the evening of Oct. 9 last, two damage actions have been entered in common pleas court against Herbert McConnell, 137 Mill stret, Salem, one petition claiming $5,000 damages and another wherein $500 damages is sought.

The petition filed by Christina Anderson of Alliance, relates that she was a passenger in an automobile being driven east on the Patterson road, and that the car in which she was riding was owned by William Anderson, but was being driven by David Anderson. She declares that the car in which she was riding was being driven east and the car being driven by McConnell in a westerly direction turned suddenly southward, and forced the car she was riding in across the road and over a steep embankment. The plaintiff claims that she was injured by the wreck, and was confined to her bed. In this petition, $5,000 damage is sought.

William Anderson asks $500 for the wrecked car.

MORE CASES FOR NEXT GRAND JURY

Additional work for the January grand jury was filed with Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine yesterday when Mayor George Russell of Salem filed 15 new transcripts for entrance on the criminal court appearance docket.

Four charges are pending against Harold Thompson, and four have been filed against Charles Rogers. Three charges have been filed against Shelly Carlisle of Lisbon, who was arrested in Salem, and two charges are against Clarence Votaw. One charge each has been filed against Charles Prezzia and also Jess Callahan. With these additional transcripts a total of 38 have already been filed.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Charging her husband with three years wilful absence, and also extreme cruelty, Tillie A. Willis has filed her petition in common pleas court seeking a divorce from Joseph F. Willis. The couple were married in Lisbon, Oct. 10, 1910. Willis is said to be residing at 302 South Third street, Steubenville.

Premises Ordered Sold.

The premises have been ordered sold in the case of Emmett Leroy Thomas against Sarah Sanor, according to a journay entry received by Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine from Judge John B. Worley of Cadiz, who heard the issues during his last week of service in this county. The court has modified the findings of the referee in this case by reducing the amount of rents charged in the sum of $350.

The deed has been set aside and cancelled as to Olive Christ. The report of the commissioners in this case has been confirmed, and the premises have been ordered sold according to law.

To Disburse Savings.

Between 25,000 and $50,000 Christmas saving funds will be released by the People's Savings bank and the Firestone bank of Lisbon about Dec. 18, it has been announced. The amount to be distributed is considerably larger than last year.

Sues on Note.

Claiming there is $200 due them on a note issued June 20, 1922, an action has been entered in common pleas court by Guy and H. W. Slusser doing business as the Alliance Nash Co. against W. R Shockley, who resides in this county. Interest on the note and judgment for the full amount is sought in the petition.

Case Dismissed.

The divorce action filed in common pleas court by Anne Nelson against her husband, John Nelson, and which was set for trial before Judge James G. Moore, has been dismissed from the record for want of prosecution.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

BY NORMAN B. BROWN

Will the smaller minor baseball leagues find a solution to their financial problems in cutting down their playing days to three days a week—Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays?

George Texter, president of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League, just formed on a permanent basis in that section, believes it will. The Mid-Atlantic League tried out the idea last season and found it a profitable move, compared to a daily schedule.

Such a schedule obviously eliminates the "weak" days for crowds, Monday, Tuesday and Friday. The latter day always has been a notoriously weak one, even in the big leagues, where "ladies' days" have been instituted for that very reason.

The poor attendance is doubly ruinous to the small minor league teams because of the overhead in keeping a team quartered away from home on those days. These outfits have not the financial backing of the bigger organizations and must depend upon the gate receipts for current expenses in the main.

The O-P League, under Texter's direction, will have to give the system a thorough tryout. The league will be an eight-club affair and play in the principal industrial centers of the two states, including Cleveland, Akron, Youngstown, New Castle Sharon, Erie, Canton and Massilon. At least five other clubs are anxious to join the organization under the plan mapped out.

The O-P magnates are also leading a campaign to place these so-called "semi-pro" teams under the protection and supervision of the national association, to the end that the backers may be protected, the clubs receive a fair remuneration for players signed by the higher circuits and the circuits be cleaned of all taint of "outlawry."

This matter has been placed before John H. Farrell, secretary of the national association and the help of Commissioner Landis sought.

GOTHAM AWAITS GRANGE DEBUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Officials of the New York Giants declared today that they expected to dispose of their last ticket before 4 o'clock this afternoon, insuring a capacity crowd of 70,000 for the Harold "Red" Grange's New York debut at the Polo grounds tomorrow afternoon. Grange will appear in the lineup of the Chicago Bears against the local Giants in a National Football league contest and, although he will have the support of many famous college stars of other days, the New York team was the favorite.

An almost continuous rain throughout the week left the gridiron heavy, in spite of efforts to protect it. It was on a muddy field, however, that Grange ran wild against Pennsylvania.

The local team left early today for Philadelphia to watch the Bears play the Frankfort Yellow Jackets in order to get a line on the speedster from Illinois.

SIX MUST O. K. RETURN MATCH

So Hagenlacher's Protest May Kill Cue Tilt.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It developed today that the sanction of the six international stars who took part in the 18.2 balkline billiard championship last year was necessary before Edouard Horemans and Jake Schaefer, the new and dethroned champions respectively, could play a return match for the title next month.

This was taken to mean here that the match would have to be abandoned as Erich Hagenlacher, of Germany, has entered a protest against the match, claiming that his prior challenge entitles him to the next shot at the title.

Horemans, Schaefer and Willie Hoppe already have signed the agreement, it is said, while replies are awaited from Welker Cochran and Kamekichi Suzuki, of Japan. However, since a unanimous agreement is necessary, Hagenlacher's protest already is believed to have killed the return match.

PIGNATORE ON ALL-STAR TEAM

The performance of Wally Pignatore, Wellsville's scholastic fullback, against Steubenville on Thanksgiving day at Central park so impressed Steubenville followers that a number of them, compiling an all-star team of players of the Steubenville eleven and teams which the Stubbers have played this year, awarded the palm to Pignatore as a halfback.

They made their selections as follows:

L. E.—Whittekind, Marietta.
L. T.—Henry, Steubenville.
L. G.—Henning, Canton.
C. — Barrett, Youngstown.
R. G.—DeMayo, Steubenville.
R. T.—Carmichael, Johnstown.
R. E.—Stephan, Marietta.
Q. B.—Bailey, Youngstown.
L. H.—Murphy, Youngstown.
R. H.—Pignatore, Wellsville.
F. B.—Welch, Steubenville.

M'MANUS, DYKES NAMED IN RUMORED YANK DEAL

Pilot Huggins Comes Out With Statement That a Major League Second Baseman, Identity Withheld, Already Has Been Acquired by New York Americans.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Rumors that Marty McManus, of the St. Louis Browns, or Jimmy Dykes, of the Philadelphia Athletics, had been acquired by the New York Yankees in a comprehensive player trade were wafted about Broadway today, following the statement of Miller Huggins that a major league second baseman, identity withheld, already was the property of the local outfit. Aaron Ward and Wally Pipp were said to have figured in the transactions, although what the Browns would want with either was not made altogether clear.

The boys, as a matter of fact, had to pick a second baseman from the field and decided to make him a good one.

Leslie Burke, of the Detroit Tigers; Harold Spurgeon, of the Cleveland Indians; Spencer Adams, of the Washington Senators, and Emory Rigney, another Tiger, also were nominated, it being the logical idea that if you named enough names you couldn't miss.

Of course, neither Rigney nor Spurgeon is a second baseman, at least not of recent vintage, but the boys will be boys. They don't seem to care what they do with another man's life.

There seemed to be no doubt, however, that the deal had been made. In fact, our Mr. Huggins came out on his flat feet and said that it had. He also declared that a class AA pitcher of skill and distinction had been added to the list of hired hands. But then he immediately stopped talking with his mouth, leaving some of our best journalistic minds to do their worst.

One of them lost no time in naming Spencer Adams as the man. That is silly on the face of it. The Yanks and Senators have no common trading ground on which to meet, both needing a shortstop. Besides, it is the writer's understanding that Adams is not exactly a bargain.

Neither is it likely that McManus could be lured away from St. Louis, although the young man is said to be dissatisfied. However, such a transaction would depend on what the Yanks could give and it wouldn't be too much. McManus is a better second baseman than Ward. Sisler, it is rumored or alleged, is a better first baseman than Pipp. The only trading material left on this end consists of Wally Schang and several so-called pitchers. Waite Hoyt, of course, might prove attractive to St. Louis but not at the expense of losing McManus.

The Cleviand angle seems the most plausible, at that. Although denials have been made from both clubs, the general understanding is that a Yankee-Indian deal of some kind has been in the making. It may have been closed. In their present position, neither club can go wrong and the Indians undoubtedly could use Pipp at first base.

The report involving Burke or Rigney is possible, simply that. Cobb, however, is a hard man to do business with on a trade. As for the Dykes rumor, it is only acceptable if Joe Hauser, first baseman, has not recovered from the injury that kept him out of the game for the entire season of 1925.

COPS WIN ROUND WITH DIXIE KID

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., Dec. 5.—Aaron Brown, 42, a negro welterweight prize fighter widely known as "the Dixie Kid," was to be arraigned today on a burglary charge.

He was arrested near his home here, charged with attempting to enter the home of William Brennan.

"The Dixie Kid" claims to have defeated Georges Carpentier in Paris in 1911, and to have fought Sam Langford and George Wolcott. He is now employed as a boxing instructor.

SOCCER LEAGUE AWARDS TITLE

Sec. Fairfield Confirms Laughlin Championship.

Confirmation of Homer Laughlin soccer club's championship of the Pittsburgh Press Northwest Division Soccer League was received yesterday by officials of the pottery eleven which went through the league season without a defeat, beating out the strong Ellwood City, Pa., team by a single point.

H. H. Fairfield, secretary of the circuit, announced that the undisputed championship had been awardeded officially to the Laughlins.

Local soccer followers regard the accomplishment of the Laughlin eleven as something of a feat, inasmuch as the Pennsylvania city had held the title for three successive years.

The cup, symbolical of the championship, will be brought to East Liverpool within the near future and placed on display in a local sporting goods store.

District fans have seen the last home game of the local eleven, officials of the club announced today, although plans are under way for two games on the road.

A number of local soccer followers are planning to attend the national cup tie game Sunday at Steubenville between the Morgan, Pa., and the La-Belle elevens. The game will be staged on the West Virginia side of the river, on a diamond adjoining the old O. & P. grounds.

The final Northwest division league standing is announced officially as follows:

British Pug Denies Reported Criticism Of American Morals

"It has never entered my head to criticize America or Americans in any way. I was treated royally when I was here before and my appreciation is deep and sincere."

Without exception, every answer was hundreds of dollars higher than the amazing low price of $1595. No one could believe it possible that Peerless could build such exceptional value and yet offer it at a price so remarkably low.

Designed for Comfort

Peerless Engineers designed this advanced 6-80 to meet a modern need for a car of short wheel base, yet with abundant body room of exceptional sturdiness for safe, dependable riding.

A 116 inch wheelbase assures ability to turn within a 40 foot circle. Any woman can turn this car on any city street—surely, easily, quickly. Yet to look at this car you would think that it was 8 or 10 inches longer.

The motor has a seven-bearing crankshaft and its smooth, steady action is further refined by a Lanchester dampener—a combination of engineering precision designed to entirely eliminate vibration.

Take any hill on high in this new 6-80 Sedan. Go from 5 to 25 miles in seven seconds.

Speed well up to 70 miles an hour and experience a new understanding of what this modern Peerless motor will do without vibration. Its pick-up is always ahead of the other fellow.

Many Finished Details

Seats—low, deep and set at just the correct comfort angle. You sit at ease as you drive or ride in this Peerless Six Sedan. Throughout, the fabric is of a fine grade of mohair. The finish is enduring Lacquer.

The value in this new Peerless Sedan is there—you sense it. You see it in every detail. You know it after a single ride in the car. Order your new Peerless 6-80 today.

"IS ZAT SO?" CHASES WORRY

Sensational Comedy Success Booked by Ceramic.

The offering at the Ceramic theatre Friday evening, Dec. 11, will be the new American comedy, "Is Zat So?" from the pens of James Gleason and Richard Taber, which is said to be so far removed from the beaten path that it is a revelation in theme. It is said to be exactly the kind of a show one wants to see when seeking mental and physical relaxation and wishes to forget all his troubles, as dull care can no more persist in the presence of "Is Zat So?" than a snow ball can persist in July.

Characterized by fine appreciation of stage vlues, with touches of emotionalism, and quick changes from comedy to drama and back to comedy are said to make the performances of Richard Taber, co-author of the piece, as "Chick" Cowan, the prize boxer, and Hale Norcross as "Hap" Hurley, his manager, unforgetable pictures of men of rough exteriors but with hearts of gold.

Earle Boothe, in association with the Messrs. Shubert, will bring the complete Chicago organization, which recently closed a triumphant engagement of six months in the western metropolis, for presentation of the comedy at the Ceramic theatre.

A road tunnel to connect Liverpool and Birkenhead, passing under the River Mersey at its narrowest part, is to be constructed at a cost of $26,000,000.

Feathers shipped in the last year from the United States to Great Britain before they had been dressed weighed 1,000,000 pounds and were valued at $91,000.

WEIRTON MILL TO BE ENLARGED

Ground Will be Broken Soon For Additions to Plant.

That ground will be broken for the new expansion project of the Weirton Steel company within a short time was indicated yesterday by J. C. Williams, general superintendent of the plant.

Actual building operations are not scheduled to commence until next spring, he said, but the company may go ahead, perhaps by the middle of next week and begin excavation work.

Engineers of the Pennsylvania railroad company were in Weirton recently surveying the ground for the proposed expansion, in which the Pennsylvania facilities will have a large part in taking care of the expansion of the mills.

The ground, which will be broken first, will include the sites of the blast furnace, open hearth and sheet mill projects, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars during next summer.

The law also provides that the commission, upon not less than five days notice in writing, and after due hearing, may revoke the license of any operator of chauffeur convicted of any offense against the motor vehicle laws, and that upon due proof of a second conviction, the commission shall revoke the license.

Licenses are not revoked by the commission following a first conviction for a minor offense, but for the offense of driving while intoxicated.

Compounding Felony.

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Co.

There are laws against compounding a felony. If a man steals your money, and you pay him to bring it back, promising to say nothing about it, you are guilty of a crime.

Financial institutions, however, and concerns that issue insurance against loss by theft, forgery, etc., make a regular business of compounding felonies.

In New York recently, a young criminal named Pirie store $250 from a bank. The bank allowed him to go free, on his promise to pay in installments. That was compounding a felony, as well as committing a crime.

During his freedom this young man killed another boy named Nye.

Just as a public service the mother of that boy ought to sue the bank that compounded the murderer's felony. If the bank hadn't committed the crime of compounding that felony the murderer would hav ebeen in jail and his victim would not have been killed.

Winston Churchill says books cost too much. "Too much" is putting it mildly. A reader pays $2 for a book that can be manufactured for 20 cents, and for a really good book, such as "The Golden Bough," now published in two volumes, he pays $10 or more for wh can be produced for $1.

When he gets around to it Henry Ford ought to start a book publishing business, and show publishers

VETERAN MINER DIES FROM GAS AS HE SAVES HIS COMRADES

Fire Sweeps Gold and Silver Shaft in Colorado.

27 MEN INJURED

Seven Rescuers are Overcome, But Are Brought Out.

NEDERLAND, Colo., Dec. 5.—All of the 20 miners entombed when fire destroyed the entrance to the Cardinal Gold and Silver mine here have been rescued, a check-up today showed.

Charles Herquist, 50 year old, a veteran miner, was the only one who lost his life. He died from gas he encountered when he went into the vapor-swept tunnel with the rescue party.

Rescuer Ignores Warnings.

Seven of twelve men who braved the poisonous gasses and brought out the imprisoned miners were overcome and were missing for a time. They were brought out early this morning.

Twenty-seven others, including Captain John E. Cutshaw of the Denver fire department, were gassed or injured. Cutshaw's condition is said to be critical.

Herquist gave his life in his efforts to rescue those imprisoned under the earth. He died at 2 o'clock this morning.

Time after time Herquist persisted in going back into the gas-filled tunnel, although he repeatedly was warned that vapors had become dangerous and that he might lose his life.

G. S. Thompson Given Injunction Against Toll House Erection

Common Pleas Judge James G. Moore, at Lisbon, yesterday granted George S. Thompson, local pottery manufacturer, an injunction restraining the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Company from the erection of a new toll house at the East Liverpool approach to the Chester-East Liverpool bridge.

The petition, which was filed by Lones, Hill & Davidson, asserts that the proposed toll house would deny the plaintiff ingress to his property, located in what is known as Thompson place. No time has been set for a hearing on the permanent order. Bond has been fixed at $200.

Sir James Barrie Refuses to Join Parade of Jazz

LONDON, Dec. 5. — Sir James Barrie will not join in the parade of jazz.

Sir James announces that he will take legal steps to prevent the production of one of his early plays—"Walker in London—as a musical comedy.

Julian Wylie, the Ziegfeld of England, who has "glorified the English girl," has acquired the rights to "Walker in London."

The play was written by Sir James Barrie more than 30 years ago and Sir James has no desire to have his past flaunted in his face dressed up in modern jazz fashion. It is believed that an agreement may be reached out of court.

EBERLE, NAVAL CHIEF, DEFENDS FATAL TRIP OF SHENANDOAH

Denies Lansdowne Was Ordered Against Wishes on Flight.

STAR WITNESS

Court-Martial Testimony Hits Col. Mitchell's Charges.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A flat denial that Commander Zachary Lansdowne had been ordered against his wishes on the fatal Shenandoah flight was given the court-martial of Colonel William Mitchell today by Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations.

Admiral Eberle stoutly defended the mid-western flight, which caused a loss of 14 lives.

"It was not a political flight. Lansdowne was not coerced by the department into risking his ship," Eberle said.

"Lansdowne had been given explicit instructions at a conference with me to use his judgment on all occasions."

A detailed account of the evidence leading up to the fatal flight, which Mitchell charged was evidence of bungling by non-flying officers, was given by the star prosecution witness.

Eberle explained that Lansdowne was originally opposed to the flight as scheduled because of fear that the Ford mooring mast at Detroit might not function properly.

Admiral Eberle admitted on cross-examination he had no documentary evidence that Lansdowne finally agreed to the flight as planned. "Lansdowne told me at a conference that he had no objections as the problems that caused him to recommend postponment had all been overcome."

"Commander Lansdowne would be alive today if you had not ordered him on his last flight would he not,' Reid asked at the end of a severe examination.

"I do not care to answer that question," snapped Eberle.

WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

An unidentified woman, driving a horse and buggy, was struck by a "hit and skip" motorist on St. Clair avenue, near the city limits, at 10:45 o'clock this morning, according to a report received by the police.

The woman was thrown from the vehicle to the street. The driver of the car, said to have been either a Chevrolet or a Nash, sped away. Another motorist attempted to follow him but was outdistanced.

Patrolman McFarland watched for the driver in the Diamond but failed to locate him.

Motorists, Use Care During Yule Rush, Police Urge

Admonishing motorists to exercise unusual caution in threading through traffic in the early days of December, Chief of Police Hugh McDermott today stressed the importance of observing local regulations during the Christmas shopping rush.

Chief McDermott said that the shopping habits of people here have changed within the last few years and that downtown streets are nearly as crowded with Christmas shoppers in the two weeks immediately after Thanksgiving as in the pre-Christmas press.

He referred particularly to the fact that this is the season when greater numbers of children than normally are on the downtown streets.

CHESTER MAN TESTIFIES AT BOWDLER TRIAL

H. P. Grohardt, 80, Witness in Blue Sky Case.

OTHERS CALLED

Defense Motion to Examine all Records Overruled.

H. P. Grohardt, 80, said to be a resident of Chester, was the first witness called by the state of West Virginia in the prosecution of charges of violating the "blue sky laws" against A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and Gordon Ulyatt in connection with the collapse of a Wheeling financial concern, when the trial was resumed in the Ohio county courts in Wheeling, yesterday.

Grohardt identified letters and literature sent out by the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, of which Bowdler was president and Ulyatt, secretary, during its stock-selling campaign.

R. A. Blessing, of the attorney general's office, who is assisting in the prosecution of the case, read the minutes of meetings of the stockholders and directors of the insolvent company. At one of these sessions the directors adopted a resolution asking that Bowdler's bonding company be asked to make good losses sustained by the company. The resolution charged that Bowdler had "embezzled $10,000 of the funds of the company."

MARRIAGE OF QUADROON AND SCION OF WEALTHY STANDS, JURY'S VERDICT

Jurors Answer Six Questions in Kip's Annulment Suit in Favor of Daughter of Negro.

DID NOT CONCEAL COLOR IS RULING

Son of One of New York's Famous Families Fails to Appear to Hear Decision.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The jury found in favor of Alice Jones Rhinelander, the quadroon bride of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest and most noted families, it was revealed today when the sealed verdict handed in last night in young Rhinelander's suit to annul his marriage, was opened in supreme court here.

Separation Suit Planned.

Davis will bring immediate suit against Rhinelander for separation and support, he announced shortly after leaving the court room.

He asked Leon R. Jacobs, lawyer of record for young Rhinelander, to accept service of summons and complaint, but he refused until he had conferred with Judge Wills.

"They can never be together, and it is no more than right that Rhinelander should support her," said Davis.

The complaint will be abandonment.

The jury answered six questions of the seven given them in the colored bride's favor, leaving the seventh unanswered. It is presumed that under the law Judge Morschauser will render a decision that the marriage of Rhinelander and the daughter of a negro odd job man must stand.

The jury answered the questions submitted to them in the following manner:

1—At the time of the marriage of the parties, was the defendant colored and of colored blood?"Yes."

2—Did the defendant, by silence, conceal from the plaintiff the fact that she was of colored blood?—"No."

3—Did the defendant, before the marriage, present to the plaintiff that she was not of colored blood?—"No."

4—Did the defendant, practice such concealment or make such representations with the intent thereby to in-

Compounding Felony.

There are laws against compounding a felony. If a man steals your money, and you pay him to bring it back, promising to say nothing about it, you are guilty of a crime.

Financial institutions, however, and concerns that issue insurance against loss by theft, forgery, etc., make a regular business of compounding felonies.

In New York recently, a young criminal named Pirie store $250 from a bank. The bank allowed him to go free, on his promise to pay in installments. That was compounding a felony, as well as committing a crime.

During his freedom this young man killed another boy named Nye.

Just as a public service the mother of that boy ought to sue the bank that compounded the murderer's felony. If the bank hadn't committed the crime of compounding that felony the murderer would hav ebeen in jail and his victim would not have been killed.

Winston Churchill says books cost too much. "Too much" is putting it mildly. A reader pays $2 for a book that can be manufactured for 20 cents, and for a really good book, such as "The Golden Bough," now published in two volumes, he pays $10 or more for what can be produced for $1.

When he gets around to it Henry Ford ought to start a book publishing business, and show publishers

VETERAN MINER DIES FROM GAS AS HE SAVES HIS COMRADES

Fire Sweeps Gold and Silver Shaft in Colorado.

27 MEN INJURED

Seven Rescuers are Overcome, But Are Brought Out.

NEDERLAND, Colo., Dec. 5.—All of the 20 miners entombed when fire destroyed the entrance to the Cardinal Gold and Silver mine here have been rescued, a check-up today showed.

Charles Herquist, 50 year old, a veteran miner, was the only one who lost his life. He died from gas he encountered when he went into the vapor-swept tunnel with the rescue party.

Rescuer Ignores Warnings.

Seven of twelve men who braved the poisonous gasses and brought out the imprisoned miners were overcome and were missing for a time. They were brought out early this morning.

Twenty-seven others, including Captain John E. Cutshaw of the Denver fire department, were gassed or injured. Cutshaw's condition is said to be critical.

Herquist gave his life in his efforts to rescue those imprisoned under the earth. He died at 2 o'clock this morning.

Time after time Herquist persisted in going back into the gas-filled tunnel, although he repeatedly was warned that vapors had become dangerous and that he might lose his life.

G. S. Thompson Given Injunction Against Toll House Erection

Common Pleas Judge James G. Moore, at Lisbon, yesterday granted George S. Thompson, local pottery manufacturer, an injunction restraining the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Company from the erection of a new toll house at the East Liverpool approach to the Chester-East Liverpool bridge.

The petition, which was filed by Lones, Hill & Davidson, asserts that the proposed toll house would deny the plaintiff ingress to his property, located in what is known as Thompson place. No time has been set for a hearing on the permanent order. Bond has been fixed at $200.

Sir James Barrie Refuses to Join Parade of Jazz

LONDON, Dec. 5. — Sir James Barrie will not join in the parade of jazz.

Sir James announces that he will take legal steps to prevent the production of one of his early plays—"Walker in London—as a musical comedy.

Julian Wylie, the Ziegfeld of England, who has "glorified the English girl," has acquired the rights to "Walker in London."

The play was written by Sir James Barrie more than 30 years ago and Sir James has no desire to have his past flaunted in his face dressed up in modern jazz fashion. It is believed that an agreement may be reached out of court.

EBERLE, NAVAL CHIEF, DEFENDS FATAL TRIP OF SHENANDOAH

Denies Lansdowne Was Ordered Against Wishes on Flight.

STAR WITNESS

Court-Martial Testimony Hits Col. Mitchell's Charges.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A flat denial that Commander Zachary Lansdowne had been ordered against his wishes on the fatal Shenandoah flight was given the court-martial of Colonel William Mitchell today by Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations.

Admiral Eberle stoutly defended the mid-western flight, which caused a loss of 14 lives.

"It was not a political flight. Lansdowne was not coerced by the department into risking his ship," Eberle said.

"Lansdowne had been given explicit instructions at a conference with me to use his judgment on all occasions."

A detailed account of the evidence leading up to the fatal flight, which Mitchell charged was evidence of bungling by non-flying officers, was given by the star prosecution witness.

Eberle explained that Lansdowne was originally opposed to the flight as scheduled because of fear that the Ford mooring mast at Detroit might not function properly.

Admiral Eberle admitted on cross-examination he had no documentary evidence that Lansdowne finally agreed to the flight as planned. "Lansdowne told me at a conference that he had no objections as the problems that caused him to recommend postponment had all been overcome."

"Commander Lansdowne would be alive today if you had not ordered him on his last flight would he not,' Reid asked at the end of a severe examination.

"I do not care to answer that question," snapped Eberle.

WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

An unidentified woman, driving a horse and buggy, was struck by a "hit and skip" motorist on St. Clair avenue, near the city limits, at 10:45 o'clock this morning, according to a report received by the police.

The woman was thrown from the vehicle to the street. The driver of the car, said to have been either a Chevrolet or a Nash, sped away. Another motorist attempted to follow him but was outdistanced.

Patrolman McFarland watched for the driver in the Diamond but failed to locate him.

Motorists, Use Care During Yule Rush, Police Urge

Admonishing motorists to exercise unusual caution in threading through traffic in the early days of December, Chief of Police Hugh McDermott today stressed the importance of observing local regulations during the Christmas shopping rush.

Chief McDermott said that the shopping habits of people here have changed within the last few years and that downtown streets are nearly as crowded with Christmas shoppers in the two weeks immediately after Thanksgiving as in the pre-Christmas press.

He referred particularly to the fact that this is the season when greater numbers of children than normally are on the downtown streets.

CHESTER MAN TESTIFIES AT BOWDLER TRIAL

H. P. Grohardt, 80, Witness in Blue Sky Case.

OTHERS CALLED

Defense Motion to Examine all Records Overruled.

H. P. Grohardt, 80, said to be a resident of Chester, was the first witness called by the state of West Virginia in the prosecution of charges of violating the "blue sky laws" against A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and Gordon Ulyatt in connection with the collapse of a Wheeling financial concern, when the trial was resumed in the Ohio county courts in Wheeling, yesterday.

Grohardt identified letters and literature sent out by the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, of which Bowdler was president and Ulyatt, secretary, during its stock-selling campaign.

R. A. Blessing, of the attorney general's office, who is assisting in the prosecution of the case, read the minutes of meetings of the stockholders and directors of the insolvent company. At one of these sessions the directors adopted a resolution asking that Bowdler's bonding company be asked to make good losses sustained by the company. The resolution charged that Bowdler had "embezzled $10,000 of the funds of the company."

MARRIAGE OF QUADROON AND SCION OF WEALTHY STANDS, JURY'S VERDICT

Jurors Answer Six Questions in Kip's Annulment Suit in Favor of Daughter of Negro.

DID NOT CONCEAL COLOR IS RULING

Son of One of New York's Famous Families Fails to Appear to Hear Decision.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The jury found in favor of Alice Jones Rhinelander, the quadroon bride of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest and most noted families, it was revealed today when the sealed verdict handed in last night in young Rhinelander's suit to annul his marriage, was opened in supreme court here.

Separation Suit Planned.

Davis will bring immediate suit against Rhinelander for separation and support, he announced shortly after leaving the court room.

He asked Leon R. Jacobs, lawyer of record for young Rhinelander, to accept service of summons and complaint, but he refused until he had conferred with Judge Wills.

"They can never be together, and it is no more than right that Rhinelander should support her," said Davis.

The complaint will be abandonment.

The jury answered six questions of the seven given them in the colored bride's favor, leaving the seventh unanswered. It is presumed that under the law Judge Morschauser will render a decision that the marriage of Rhinelander and the daughter of a negro odd job man must stand.

The jury answered the questions submitted to them in the following manner:

1—At the time of the marriage of the parties, was the defendant colored and of colored blood?"Yes."

2—Did the defendant, by silence, conceal from the plaintiff the fact that she was of colored blood?—"No."

3—Did the defendant, before the marriage, present to the plaintiff that she was not of colored blood?—"No."

4—Did the defendant, practice such concealment or make such representations with the intent thereby to in-

"When a Man's a Man"

Be a part of the great audiences that attend First Church of Christ Sunday nights.

Hear this subject discussed by the pastor Sunday Night at 7:30.

GO TO CHURCH!

It emphasizes those unseen and immortal factors which are a real part of man and which you cannot afford to neglect.

"The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age and Nature sink in years;
But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth,
Unhurt amidst the war of elements,
The wrecks of matter and the crush of worlds."

A Bracelet Watch ought to be more than a pretty ornament. It should keep correct time. You can't place dependence in a Wrist Watch which is built to sell at a bargain price. Every wrist watch is called upon to take more punishment than any other kind of time-piece; each movement of your arm produces friction which it must withstand. Only the finest piece of machinery can stand up under constant friction. There are only a half dozen really dependable makes of Wrist Watches among the hundreds on the market. Buy the kind you can rely upon. This is really very much easier to do under the convenience of our CLUB PLAN of Extended Charge Accounts than to pay a so-called cash bargain price for an inferior watch. It emphasizes those unseen and immortal factors which are a real part of man and which you cannot afford to neglect.

"The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age and Nature sink in years;
But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth,
Unhurt amidst the war of elements,
The wrecks of matter and the crush of worlds."

A Bracelet Watch ought to be more than a pretty ornament. It should keep correct time. You can't place dependence in a Wrist Watch which is built to sell at a bargain price. Every wrist watch is called upon to take more punishment than any other kind of time-piece; each movement of your arm produces friction which it must withstand. Only the finest piece of machinery can stand up under constant friction. There are only a half dozen really dependable makes of Wrist Watches among the hundreds on the market. Buy the kind you can rely upon. This is really very much easier to do under the convenience of our CLUB PLAN of Extended Charge Accounts than to pay a so-called cash bargain price for an inferior watch. METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL — By EDGAR POE NORRIS — WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

SIXTEEN.

Noble gave his head a vicious shake, suspecting that he was drunk, and afraid that he wasn't. Stunned by the surprise of coming upon such a scene, and befuddled by the liquor in his stomach, he stood staring at the pair seated below him. Damn! Right before his eyes! Laurel with her head resting upon David Gaines' shoulder, and one hand clasped in the youth's fingers. As one hypnotized, Noble watched Gaines run his hand caressingly back and forth across Laurel's forehead. The intensity of his gaze acted upon Gaines' intuition, and caused the youth to turn, startled.

"Mr. Harwood . . . Err . . . I'm afraid your wife is ill."

As he spoke Laurel, as if suddenly awakened, turned her head wearily toward her husband, then held out a hand to him. "I'm so sick, Noble." There was helplessness in her glance.

Her husband hesitated no longer but stepped forward and pulled her up to her feet. Glaring at Gaines, he exclaimed: "Why didn't you call for someone, you idiot! Here, take the other arm." He led the way down the stairs and toward the state room. They half carried, half dragged Laurel until Noble halted, picked her up like a child, and carried her unaided. "Call Dr. Warner," he said sharply to Gaines, who was following them.

Laying her prone upon a bed, he loosened her clothing, and began to fan her. Laurel looked at him through feverish eyes, and spoke weakly: "You shouldn't have been so rude to Mr. Gaines, dear. I fainted I think, and he was just excited—."

"I guess so! Never mind about that pup. Be quiet."

She was moaning softly when Dr. Warner came, followed by Gaines. Noble waved the doctor toward the bed and faced the youth, who was standing in the doorway, looking rather disturbed. "Thank you, Gaines. Seasick persons have to be relaxed." Noble's tone was bruskly apologetic.

"I—err hope she gets better," Gaines replied, begining to regain possession of himself.

"Yes, yes." Noble turned away. Dr. Warner came to meet him with a professional smile.

"Just a touch of mal-de-mer," said the physician. "I'll give her a sedative and she'll be comfortable, I think. Needs to be quiet a while, that's all."

"Not a good sailor," Noble laughed, feeling called upon to say something.

"The water is getting rather choppy and I don't think the other ladies are very comfortable, either."

When the physician had administered the sedative, Noble followed him to the companion way. "Thank you, Dr. Warner."

"Don't mention it. I must say, Mr. Harwood, that you have an uncommonly pretty wife."

Warmed, Noble smiled. "Naturally, I think so." He gave the physician a parting slap on the shoulder, and walked out upon the deck.

His legs were unsteady now and he sought support at the railing. The experience had shaken him, and his mind was in awhirl. That damned pup, Gaines! He could not get rid of the idea that Laurel was not too helpless to extract herself from such a compromising position. He wondered if anyone else had seen them there. Were they together when Laurel fainted? He remembered how attentive the youth was to Laurel at the Buckmaster dinner. He had not thought about it then. . . .

"Feeding the fishes?"

Noble turned Wingman, in trim uniform, resplendent with gold buttons and braided cap, was smiling at him sympathetically.

"Oh, no. . . . I'm feeling all right . . . I was just ah, enjoying the motion of the ship under my feet, and the view of the shore lights."

"I'm glad you didn't call it a boat. My pet aversion is the person who calls everything that floats a boat."

Noble didn't understand the import of Wingman's remark, he wasn't up on nautical distinctions. There was silence between them until he remarked, "Getting brisk, isn't it?"

"I'm afraid I chose a bad evening—the sea is running too strong for landsmen. Out of deference to the ladies, I'm putting in."

Noble was glad when his host proceeded toward the bridge; he wanted to be alone.

Captain Wingman set his guests ashore at the private wharf of the Oyster Sound County club half an hour later. Laurel revived as soon as she got her feet upon level ground, as did most of the women guests. Charley Buckmaster led the way to the clubhouse pulling his wife along and growling, "Rotten sailors—what an awful bunch of rotten sailors."

"Now, Charles," Mrs. Buckmaster said quietly. "The ladies couldn't saturate themselves with liquor until they were immune." The others laughed, and Charley was quiet.

Th eparty took possession of one of the parlors, and Letty Alster began to bang a piano. Two couples swung into a dance. Laurel cuddled up close to Noble on a lounge. "I'm cold."

He placed his arm around her. "I love this gown," he said, running his free hand over the material.

Laurel's hands dropped limply to her side. "I'm glad I have things now that you like."

They sat silently watching the others. Noble was thinking of Laurel with her head resting on David Gaines' shoulder. In Laurel's mind was a vision of the dark-eyed mannequin who wore all of the dresses Noble selected; gowns worn by other mannequins he had passed up completely.

"May I have this dance with you?"

They looked up at David Gaines. "I'm rather tired," Laurel suggested. She looked quickly toward her husband.

Noble had not gotten up. "If you like," he said.

Laurel hesitated, then looked toward the other dancers and was imbued suddenly with energy. She got up and took Gaines' hand.

Damn! Noble's glaring eyes followed them out amidst the gyrating couples. His gaze did not miss a motion they made as he sat stiffly upright throughout the dance. As the impromptu pianist paused momentarily to light a cigarette, he leaped up and went to his wife, taking her from Gaines by offering his arm.

"We're going home," he said hoarsely.

He meant Central City.

The weather has little effect upon the operating temperature of your motor. It may be freezing outside, yet within the engine's combustion chamber, the temperature is approximately 2000° F., as usual.

Why, then, should you use some special motor oil in winter? Isn't it necessary that at all times you use the oil highest in heat resisting properties—one that is never doctored at the expense of its protective properties?

Cold Days—HOT Motors

The weather has little effect upon the operating temperature of your motor. It may be freezing outside, yet within the engine's combustion chamber, the temperature is approximately 2000° F., as usual.

Why, then, should you use some special motor oil in winter? Isn't it necessary that at all times you use the oil highest in heat resisting properties—one that is never doctored at the expense of its protective properties?

FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil has a heat test 100 degrees higher than ordinary oils. It is refined from 100% Pennsylvania Crude by specialists of 46 years experience. Continue to ask for it by name.

Shop Early For Auto Licenses

Christmas shopping for 1926 automobile licenses in Ohio was ushered in today.

Practicing as well as preaching "Shop Early" and "Mail Early," in keeping with the nation-wide movement to prevent last-minute rushes to fulfill Yuletide needs, Chalmers Wilson, head of the state automobile license bureau, has shipped the first allotment of the new tags to East Liverpool as well as to other sections of Ohio.

Deputy Automobile Commissioner J. S. Hilbert and his co-workers today began issuing the licenses to patrons who have a recorded bill of sale and whose machines appear on the Columbiana county tax list.

Four thousand plates—their numbers rang from 240,401 to 244,440—in the chocolate and white color combination are available, and while the law does not permit their use until New Year's Day car owners are urged to buy now.

Put your automobile license requisition on your "Early Shopping" list.

Corn

Too much corn again. A bumper crop of 3,000,000,000 bushels, which ought to bring rejoicing, brings grief to many farmers. The price of this grain, which a year ago was as high as wheat usually is, has dropped half a dollar a bushel. So we have again the odd situation of a great crop valued at less than a small crop might be. The surplus drags down the price of all the rest. The tail wags the dog.

It isn't so bad, though, as it might be. Corn still brings enough to pay most farmers for the cost of raising it. The big majority of farmers, too, use their own corn, and in such cases the price doesn't make much practical difference.

The present situation will increase this consumption of corn right on the farm that produced it. Corn is used mostly to feed to cattle and hogs. Hogs are high enough to make corn pay in the form of pork. Farmers therefore will raise more hogs next year. They will also plant less corn next year. So they will get their corn money out of hogs, and the next corn crop will probably bring more per bushel.

Traffic Engineering

"In every community in the United States," says the American Engineering Council, "the traffic problem is acute in some form. The country is just beginning to realize that the problem is essentially an engineering problem."

So the engineers are going to get busy on it. Thirty national and local societies connected with the central council are going to study the whole situation and try to work out a solution.

It is a little late for the engineers to tackle the problem created by the motor car, but their aid is welcome. The police, as the engineers remark, have "reached their limit of accomplishment." It is only in part a policemen's job. Fundamentally it is an engineering job. Traffic must be properly routed before it can be properly policed.

Thoroughfares and their connections have to be provided. In many cases it means such a changing and widening of traffic lanes as will involve almost the rebuilding of cities.

The changes, needless to say, will be expensive. But when they are once made, communities can start growing freely again, as the traffic which is their life-blood moves through their arteries and veins without obstruction, and all the community's organic functions resume their natural action.

Corporation Owners

It is still customary in this country to speak of "the trusts" or "the corporations" as if they represented some mysterious and dreaded super-power, wielded by a few very rich men. But today this is little more than a tradition.

Who owns the corporations? Take the public utility corporations alone, of whose ownership and control Americans have been particularly jealous. The latest inquiry shows that their securities are held by 7,000,000 people. Omitting the railroads, public utilities with a capital of $20,000,000,000, as great as our national debt, are held by that number of citizens. If each investor represents an average family, it means that about one-third of the nation shares the ownership of these "trusts."

Nearly 1,000,000 people own the capital stock of the railroads, and their bonds are held by more than that number.

We hear little more of "bloated bondholders," because nearly everyone today knows bondholders that are not bloated in any sense.

The old symbol of a corporation was a fat plutocrat in a dollar-marked suit. The new symbol may be a workman entering a bank with his pay check.

Twelve high departmental chiefs of the Russian government have been shot for embezzlement. In American public life we sometimes get as far as hanging the jury in such cases.

"War Upon Waste Wins, Says Hoover." But waste will have its inning again in the next war.

The intelligence expert who has started measuring congressmen's heads ought to measure their tongues and bills.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. — There is a Turkish bath not far from the slate-gray shadow of the Tombs that is an underworld hang-out. Criminals go there to recuperate from drug and drink orgies that usually follow their crimes.

Perhaps they feel secure because a key circling their wrists is the only link with the outside world. Too, in the various rooms they are free to discuss crimes finished and to be done. They are in touch with dream pedding dope sellers if they want to continue the debauch.

A stranger is told gruffly the place is filled. There are said to be many secret exits in case a prospective patron has the aura of Central office. The only time it was ever successfully raided by police was by a ruse. A supposedly alcohilic patron got into the dressing room.

He was denied admission to the bath and asked to use the telephone to call up another bathhouse. A detective awaited there. "This is Bill Randall. Got room for me over there?" he inquired. "Bill Randall" was the code for "Send the reserves." The place was surrounded and 12 criminals trapped.

But the man they wanted escaped by merely girding his loins with a towel, the distinguishing mark between rubber and patron. The Turkish Bath is in other ways a focal point of interest for the police, even in more perfumed purlieus.

Almost daily some man reported missing to the police is found sleeping off a bout with rum in a public bath. Men who decide to vanish for one reason or another often spend two or three days in a bath, so obvious trails will cool before they make a big get-a-way.

For one reason or another — prohibition as usual gets the blame— there is a large increase of Turkish and Russian baths in the past five years. The rubber, despite the perspiring nature of his toil, is almost invariably obese.

Arnold Rothstein is reputed to be New York's heaviest plunging gambler. There are many stories of his coolness with thousands at stake. Once, it is said, that in a dice game with the famous Nick the Greek more than one hundred thousand dollars were involved in the turn of the cubes. Rothstein's usually pallid face wore its customary immobility. Those standing close say a faint mustache of perspiration appeared on his upper lip—that was all. He dresses in quiet colors and his eyes have the glint of of cool steel. Now and then he appears in a cafe and always jockeys himself to a seat with his back to the wall. Enemies are reputed to have put a price on his head many times. Of late Rothstein has conducted a successful insurance business.

Bald Jack Rose is a gambler who ran to penny-dreadful type. He had a cool, insolent smile. His head resembled a gleaming, mammoth billiard ball. For years he apparently walked alone in the dark lanes of the Forties, but behind him was a body-guard, ready to aid in emergency. Bald Jack came a cropper in the Rosenthal gambling murder, and Broadway sees him no more. He was last heard of as an itinerant hot gospeler.

A noted comic artist has been so frequently humiliated by an imposter he has appealed to the police. The rascal in tattered clothes has been frequenting cafes and posing as the artist. He is able to sketch hurriedly several of the artist's cartoon characters. Then he borrows money on the plea he has been on a drunk. He passes out I. O. U's on cards which bear the artist's printed name. The artist is absolutely abstemious, but some $400 worth of I. O. U's have been sent to him with polite entreaties to return the loans. In each case he has hunted out the creditor who sees immediately he has been duped, but the artist has insisted upon making the loan good.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Football Development.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Another season of intercollegiate football, the manly sport of mayhem, is completed, and students and coeds have relaxed into a state of semi-composure after one of the most thrilling seasons on record.

It was largely a succession of upsets and surprises, of momentary flashes of brilliance by underdogs and of temporary incompetence by leaders. Harvard held Yale to a scoreless tie; Yale bowed to Princeton; Illinois and Grange smashed Penn; Michigan massacred Navy; Northwestern nosed out Michigan; Kansas defeated Missouri; Standford walloped California; Dartmouth smothered Cornell.

All of these were upsets in one way or another. If the result was expected in some cases it was not expected to be decisive, as in the case of the Michigan-Navy, and Dartmouth-Cornell struggles.

Penn, the powerful, after downing Yale, met an unlooked for whirlwind in Zuppke's Illini, and thereafter spent a colorless season. Michigan met the long suffering Northwestern, suffered its only defeat and experienced the only score tallied against it all season.

Harvard, after a miserable season, held the touted steam roller of Yale to nothing, while Princeton, an outside team at the beganning of the season crushed that same Yale eleven when the Elis ruled the decided favorite.

Missouri, after a brilliant season and a victory over Nebraska—conqueror of Notre Dame—lost its final game to its traditional rival, Kansas, which had spent a medicore season.

Stanford realized an ambition of many years' standing by taking California's measure, while the deluges of touchdowns in the Michigan-Navy, and Cornell-Dartmouth games were unlooked for.

With this series of surprises the tide of intercollegiate football enthusiasm reached a high water mark never before attained by the sport. Unparalleled crowds watched games that attracted the interest of the nation, while everywhere the presumptious program of stadium building is being rushed, indicating that even greater interest will be manifested in the future.

Again, this remarkable series of upsets showed that the West, for years held as inferior by the East, had established itself as a football entity. For years the Big Three, the Service teams, and the rest of the East have been considered, by the nation as a whole, as being the leaders in intercollegiate football. But in 1925 Dartmouth, and Dartmouth alone, of al the eastern teams, loomed impressively in an intersectional game. Her defeat of Chicago was impressive. True, Penn beat Chicago, but the victory was not impressive, and the Illinois game at Philadelphia was an overwhelming triumph for the West. And then there was the Michigan-Navy slaughter.

Game Being Nationalized.

The 1925 season showed also that the game is becoming nationalized. Although baseball is the national game, it never has had the flavor that football possesses. Intersectional games have brought this about and now the eastern and western football fans follow the fortunes of each other's favorites with interest. Where the big leagues hold unquestioned supremacy in professional baseball, there is no section or conference in intercollegiate football that can claim this unquestioned superiority. The game has become too much of a national affair, with a fair standard of equality for all concerned.

It is perfectly natural that, until recently, the East should have had the leadership in football, for in the East intercollegiate games first put in their appearance.

About 1840 football, in a crude form, made its debut at Harvard, Yale, and Princeton. At Harvard and Yale it took the form of intermural rushes between the two lower classes, but at Princeton it was played under a well-balanced system of rules that resemble the modern intercollegiate rules.

Meanwhile a similar game had sprung up at Rutgers and as a result Princeton and Rutgers met, November 6, 1869, in what was the first intercollegiate football game in America. This antedates by two years the first one played in England—that between Cambridge and Oxford in 1872.

During the next few years Princeton, Rutgers and Columbia played regular schedules of games. Yale appeared as a competitor in 1872 and Harvard in 1874. In 1876 Columbia, Harvard, Yale, and Princeton met in convention and formed the American Intercollegiate Football association, which adopted an amended form of the Rugby Union rules as the common playing code. This association lasted until 1894 when almost all the colleges and schools of the country had adopted the game.

Since the adoption of the Rugby Union rules the game has been in a continual state of change. Although basically it is still Rugbian, it has evolved until it is a distinct type, so many original features having been introduced.

Professional Teams Appear.

Today hundreds of colleges and thousands of schools play the intercollegiate game, while the recent appearance of professional teams further increases the number of organizations that use its rules.

With the shifting of the center of population toward the West the East began to lose its grip on football leadership. In 1894, although every college in the nation that was worth considering had adopted the game, the big eastern schools weer supreme because of their numerical superiority and experience.

But with the rapid increase in population and the appearance at middle western and western schools of thousands of students, football material became abundant and it was only a question of time until the country west of the Alleghenies would produce teams capable of coping with the best ones along the seaboard. The year 1925 marked the greatest advance in this tendency, which is nationalizing the game.

Football, like every other sport, found its inception in ancient times. The Greeks played a form of the game which was called harpaston. The Romans played a similar game which was known as harpastum, while the first travelers to the Polynesian islands found the natives playing with a football made of bamboo fibres. The Eskimos played with a moss filled leather ball, while Italy, during the middle ages played a game called calico which was a prototype of the modern football game.

As early as 1175 England makes mention of the game, when an ancient writer vividly describes a contest taken part in by the boys of London. The sport later became so popular that many kings issued edicts forbidding its play because it was imperilling the warlike pastime of archery. Edward 11 forbade it under pain of imprisonment, while Henry VI bluntly proclaimed that "na man shall play at fut ball.'

Nevertheless the game survived and by 1800 England had several specialized types of play. At one time there were hundreds on either side and the game was a general melee, played over vast areas sometimes miles in extent, but it was gradually modified until smaller groups of players came into vogue.

Its popularity in England is illustrated by a game played at Glasgow in 1913. This contest, an international affair between England and Scotland attracted 127,300 people.

With the rapid growth of the game in the United States it is not unreasonable to believe that this mark will be equalled and passed. Eighty-odd thousand watched the Illinois-Ohio State game this year, and with the building of gigantic stadiums more will be admitted at the colorful clashes. The 1925 season pointed to this with its tremendous interest and the crowds that followed it.

All of these were upsets in one way or another. If the result was expected in some cases it was not expected to be decisive, as in the case of the Michigan-Navy, and Dartmouth-Cornell struggles.

Penn, the powerful, after downing Yale, met an unlooked for whirlwind in Zuppke's Illini, and thereafter spent a colorless season. Michigan met the long suffering Northwestern, suffered its only defeat and experienced the only score tallied against it all season.

Harvard, after a miserable season, held the touted steam roller of Yale to nothing, while Princeton, an outside team at the beganning of the season crushed that same Yale eleven when the Elis ruled the decided favorite.

Missouri, after a brilliant season and a victory over Nebraska—conqueror of Notre Dame—lost its final game to its traditional rival, Kansas, which had spent a medicore season.

Stanford realized an ambition of many years' standing by taking California's measure, while the deluges of touchdowns in the Michigan-Navy, and Cornell-Dartmouth games were unlooked for.

With this series of surprises the tide of intercollegiate football enthusiasm reached a high water mark never before attained by the sport. Unparalleled crowds watched games that attracted the interest of the nation, while everywhere the presumptious program of stadium building is being rushed, indicating that even greater interest will be manifested in the future.

Again, this remarkable series of upsets showed that the West, for years held as inferior by the East, had established itself as a football entity. For years the Big Three, the Service teams, and the rest of the East have been considered, by the nation as a whole, as being the leaders in intercollegiate football. But in 1925 Dartmouth, and Dartmouth alone, of al the eastern teams, loomed impressively in an intersectional game. Her defeat of Chicago was impressive. True, Penn beat Chicago, but the victory was not impressive, and the Illinois game at Philadelphia was an overwhelming triumph for the West. And then there was the Michigan-Navy slaughter.

Game Being Nationalized.

The 1925 season showed also that the game is becoming nationalized. Although baseball is the national game, it never has had the flavor that football possesses. Intersectional games have brought this about and now the eastern and western football fans follow the fortunes of each other's favorites with interest. Where the big leagues hold unquestioned supremacy in professional baseball, there is no section or conference in intercollegiate football that can claim this unquestioned superiority. The game has become too much of a national affair, with a fair standard of equality for all concerned.

It is perfectly natural that, until recently, the East should have had the leadership in football, for in the East intercollegiate games first put in their appearance.

About 1840 football, in a crude form, made its debut at Harvard, Yale, and Princeton. At Harvard and Yale it took the form of intermural rushes between the two lower classes, but at Princeton it was played under a well-balanced system of rules that resemble the modern intercollegiate rules.

Meanwhile a similar game had sprung up at Rutgers and as a result Princeton and Rutgers met, November 6, 1869, in what was the first intercollegiate football game in America. This antedates by two years the first one played in England—that between Cambridge and Oxford in 1872.

During the next few years Princeton, Rutgers and Columbia played regular schedules of games. Yale appeared as a competitor in 1872 and Harvard in 1874. In 1876 Columbia, Harvard, Yale, and Princeton met in convention and formed the American Intercollegiate Football association, which adopted an amended form of the Rugby Union rules as the common playing code. This association lasted until 1894 when almost all the colleges and schools of the country had adopted the game.

Since the adoption of the Rugby Union rules the game has been in a continual state of change. Although basically it is still Rugbian, it has evolved until it is a distinct type, so many original features having been introduced.

Professional Teams Appear.

Today hundreds of colleges and thousands of schools play the intercollegiate game, while the recent appearance of professional teams further increases the number of organizations that use its rules.

With the shifting of the center of population toward the West the East began to lose its grip on football leadership. In 1894, although every college in the nation that was worth considering had adopted the game, the big eastern schools weer supreme because of their numerical superiority and experience.

But with the rapid increase in population and the appearance at middle western and western schools of thousands of students, football material became abundant and it was only a question of time until the country west of the Alleghenies would produce teams capable of coping with the best ones along the seaboard. The year 1925 marked the greatest advance in this tendency, which is nationalizing the game.

Football, like every other sport, found its inception in ancient times. The Greeks played a form of the game which was called harpaston. The Romans played a similar game which was known as harpastum, while the first travelers to the Polynesian islands found the natives playing with a football made of bamboo fibres. The Eskimos played with a moss filled leather ball, while Italy, durinz the middle ages played a game called calico which was a prototype of the modern football game.

As early as 1175 England makes mention of the game, when an ancient writer vividly describes a contest taken part in by the boys of London. The sport later became so popular that many kings issued edicts forbidding its play because it was imperilling the warlike pastime of archery. Edward 11 forbade it under pain of imprisonment, while Henry VI bluntly proclaimed that "na man shall play at fut ball.'

Nevertheless the game survived and by 1800 England had several specialized types of play. At one time there were hundreds on either side and the game was a general melee, played over vast areas sometimes miles in extent, but it was gradually modified until smaller groups of players came into vogue.

Its popularity in England is illustrated by a game played at Glasgow in 1913. This contest, an international affair between England and Scotland attracted 127,300 people.

With the rapid growth of the game in the United States it is not unreasonable to believe that this mark will be equalled and passed. Eighty-odd thousand watched the Illinois-Ohio State game this year, and with the building of gigantic stadiums more will be admitted at the colorful clashes. The 1925 season pointed to this with its tremendous interest and the crowds that followed it.

BAD WIRING IS BLAMED FOR FIRE

Defective wiring in an automobile is believed to have been the primary cause for the fire which yesterday burned down a garage in Beech street, owned by Joseph Smith, and also destroyed two automobiles, one, a Cleveland Six, belonging to Smith, and another, a Ford, owned by F. E. Connor.

Firemen saved an adjoining garage which, for a time, was threatened. The fire at the Smith garage had gained such headway that it was almost impossible to check it after it had been discovered.

Dog, Stars in Screen Play at American

Rin-Tin-Tin, Wonder

"The Clash of the Wolves," the Warner Bros. classic of the screen, which is opening at the American theatre on Monday for a three-day engagement, is a Charles A. Logue story of the cattle country of the Sierras, and was written especially for its star, Rin-Tin-Tin, the popular dog actor.

Lobo, leader of the wolf pack, is driven down from the forests by a terrifying fire and because of the danger to the cattle and ranchers, a price is put upon his head. Young David Weston (Charles Farrell), while working on his borax claim, extracts a thorn from the wolf's foot, and Lobo becomes his staunch friend and protector.

NEW QUESTION IS SUGGESTED IN NYE FIGHT

Is North Dakota Senator-designate State Officer.

COURT MAY RULE

Seating of Appointee Brings Income Tax Issue to Head.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The United States supreme court may be called upon to settle the question whether a United States senator is a federal or a state officer, it was learned today, as a result of issues raised in the effort to prevent the seating of Senator-designate Gerald P. Nye, (R., of N. D.)

The seating of Nye, now conceded by administration leaders, on the ground that Governor Sorlie of North Dakota was empowered to fill vacancies in "state offices' it was said, will bring to a head two issues. These will be wether the government has the right to collect income taxes from members of congress, if they are "state officers," and second, whether they will ebcome subject to the "recall" laws now existing in various states.

The income tax question has smouldered in the senate and house for many years but the Nye case apparently has brought it to life. Under a decision of the supreme court in 1870 it was held the Tenth Amendment of the Constitution prohibited the federal government from collecting any income taxes from the salaries of state officers. If the senate should decide that Nye was a "state officer," it was pointed out, a test case could be raised against further payment of income taxes.

To date, members of congress have paid something like $1,300,000 into the federal treasury in income taxes upon their salaries since the first incost tax was levied in 1913. From 1918 to 1922, it was said, this tax averaged $200 a year for senators and congressmen, but only $90 a year since the Longworth-Simmons bill was passed in 1924.

duce the plaintiff to marry her?—"N."

5—Was the plaintiff, by such concealment or by such representations, or by both, induced to marry the defendant—"No."

6—If the plaintiff had known the defendant was of colored blood, would he have married her?—"Yes"

7—Did the plaintiff co-habit with the defendant after he had obtained knowledge that the defendant was of colored blood.—Not answered.

Bride and Kin Smile.

Rhinelander was not in court when the verdict against him was read. Former Judge Isaac N. Mills, his chief counsel, said that his client had heard the report that was circulated early today that the jury's findings were not favorable and that he did not want to appear in court and hear them.

Mrs. Rhinelander sat motionless and expressionless in her chair in the court room for a few minutes following the reading of the jury's report. Her father and mother and sisters, sitting around her, exchanged smiling glances.

Justice Morschauser entered the crowded court room at exactly 10 A. M. As he took his place, County Clerk George Ellroot handed the verdict to Clarence E. Pietsch, foreman of the jury, who corroborated its accuracy. It was then given to Justice Morschauser, who read the questions over to himself and then announced that the slightest attempt at a demonstration when the answers were read would result in prosecution for contempt of court.

"I want you to know that this is no circus," Justice Morschauser said. "The court officers will see that no one moves when the questions have been read."

The tomb-like silence that followed the reading of the verdict was broken only by the scramble of reporters for telephones and telegraph wires.

Defense Thanks Jurors

When the court finished reading the question and answers, Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Rhinelander, asked that the entire list be read to each juror.

This was done, and each in turn answered unhesitatingly.

The only sign that Mrs. Rhinelander gave of the tension under which she was laboring was a nervous wringing of her hands.

Lee Parsons Davis, her attorney, rose to his feet, following the questioning of the jury.

"May I, in behalf of the defense, express my appreciation?" he askd.

The jurors nodded to him.

The court had something to say also at this time.

"I want to thank the jury for its patience in this case," said Judge Marschauser. "I have arranged with the commission of jurors that you will not be called to serve for a year, that is unless you want to serve.

"Some people think this trial has been a strain on me, but it has not. I have been fresh every day."

Motion To Set Aside Verdict.

The jury was then excused and Judge Mills made the customary motion that the court set aside the verdict as contrary to the weight of evidence. The aged lawyer, plaintly perturbed, was permitted to argue the motion at once.

Justice Morschauser, after listening to Mills' arguments, announced that he would take under advisement the motion to set the verdict aside.

how to make money without charging 10 times what a book costs.

Where would Ford be with his automobiles if he charged $3,000 for a runabout?

If you have an inventive mind, Mr. New, the postmaster general, would like you to invent a flying machine for carrying mails that will not collect moisture, turning to ice, loading down the machine in the cold upper air.

Mr. Mayo, Henry Ford's chief engineer, should settle that problem. The heat wasted in the exhaust of the Henry Ford all-metal monoplane might be used to keep the outer layers of metal free of ice.

It was Amos Cummings on the New York Sun in Charles A. Dana's time, who said: "If a man bites a dog that is news."

In Alsace a rabbit has just shot a man, and that also is news. A. De Mouche, a farmer, laid his gun on the ground to take a rabbit from the trap. Another rabbit, dashing from the bushes, stepped on the trigger and De Mouche crawled home with a full load of shot in his back. How that would interest the rabbits of the world. But they can't read.

Thanks to Locarno, western Europe thinks that peace has come, and the question now is: What will western Europe do with the peace?

The first thing should be to cut the cost of keeping ready for war—since war is not expected.

France could take half a million men off the public payroll and put them to work at useful production, instead of marching around in clothes paid for by the people, eating food paid for by the people.

Poland also could get rid of a few hundred thousand soldiers fed by the workers. But Poland has Russia to worry about, and Russia is no partner to the Locarno treaty.

listed their machines for taxation. The motorist must make affidavit to the the truth of statements in the application. A registration fee of 15 cents is charged for each pair of plates.

Because of the clerical work which is necessary in issuing licenses, automobile owners are requested to apply immediately in order to avoid congestion during the last few days of the year. Commissioner Hilbert has warned that only a limited number of plates can be issued each day and that many owners will be without their new license plates on January 1, if they defer their applications.

Licenses will cost only one-half of the fee charged last year. The rates for pleasure cars are $4 for the smaller type, $6 for the medium-sized machines and $10 for the high-powered cars. The rates for motor trucks are based upon their weight.

Collections from the sale of licenses here during 1925 amounted to $53,747.98. Of this sum, $38,195 was received from pleasure car licenses, which numbered 4,817; $14,276.54 from trucks, which totalled 724; $52.55 from five trailers; $85.04 from 36 motorcycles, and $22.52 from 16 side cars. This is a total of $52,631.65. The remaining $1,116.33 was brought in from transfers, which netted $1,017.33; duplicate tags costing $71, and 28 certificates costing $28. The average cost of each pair of licenses issued last year was $9.40.

listed their machines for taxation. The motorist must make affidavit to the the truth of statements in the application. A registration fee of 15 cents is charged for each pair of plates.

Because of the clerical work which is necessary in issuing licenses, automobile owners are requested to apply immediately in order to avoid congestion during the last few days of the year. Commissioner Hilbert has warned that only a limited number of plates can be issued each day and that many owners will be without their new license plates on January 1, if they defer their applications.

Licenses will cost only one-half of the fee charged last year. The rates for pleasure cars are $4 for the smaller type, $6 for the medium-sized machines and $10 for the high-powered cars. The rates for motor trucks are based upon their weight.

Collections from the sale of licenses here during 1925 amounted to $53,747.98. Of this sum, $38,195 was received from pleasure car licenses, which numbered 4,817; $14,276.54 from trucks, which totalled 724; $52.55 from five trailers; $35.04 from 36 motorcycles, and $22.52 from 16 sidecars. This is a total of $52,631.85. The remaining $1,116.33 was brought in from transfers, which netted $1,017.33; duplicate tags costing $71, and 28 certificates costing $28. The average cost of each pair of licenses issued last year was $9.40.

Q. What was the ration of coal allowed the people in France during the World war? I. N. M.

A. Fuel was so scarce in France that during the winter of 1917-18 the amount of coal allowed to domestic consumers was approximately 11 kilos, or 24 pounds, per month.

Q. What is the size of this year's apple crop? C. A. S.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the total crop this year will reach 164,000,000 bushels, compared with 179,000,000 bushels last year. The decrease in total production, however, is partially offset by the fact that the crop is of unusually fine quality, and less than the usual proportion will go to waste or be used for manufacturing purposes. The portion known as the commercial crop will reach 30,134,000 barrels compared with 28,587,000 barrels last year.

Q. Why are more radio programs broadcast at night? Is it because radio works better then? C. F. L.

A. Fine programs are given in daytime, but the most important musical programs are broadcast at night because at this time it is possible for the greatest number of people to enjoy them. Also, the electric waves travel farther in the dark than in the day time.

A. It was a piece of armor protecting the junction of the helmet and cuirass. It was worn at the close of the 17th century.

Q. What is meant by the expression, "to be sent up Salt River?" A. C. B.

A. To be sent up Salt River (or Creek) or to row up Salt River (or Creek) is a slang expression meaning to be defeated or to fail in anything; especially applied to political candidates who fail at elections, with a supposed reference to a small stream in Kentucky.

Q. Did the United States pay France for the trenches used during the war? J. C. S.

A. The War Department says that the United States has never paid to the French government, or to a French citizen for the occupation of trenches in the battle line. The rumors in regard to this matter have probably originated from the fact that the United States rented ground for training purposes, and paid a certain amount of damages to property when training trenches were constructed.

Mexico still prefers American moving pictures and recent efforts of German, French and Sapnish producers to win favor there brought little success.

FAMOUS SALOON ERECTED ON MINE

Prospectors Find Two Veins in Basement.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—"The Gold Mine" might well have been the name of the old Con Call saloon in the Burns property of the Nuesta Ventura company back in the nineties during the heyday of the Cripple Creek mining boom for, after 35 years, it has been found that the basement of the once famous grog shop was a veritable find, though none knew it at the time.

Recently two venturesome prospectors, Edward Annette and his son, Edward Annette, Jr., were probing around the old basement site and ran across what they believe a highgraders' cache.

They found pieces of high-grade ore showing free gold in the refuse. Cleaning out the place to recover the ore they threw aside pieces of glass, brass door knobs and utensils of the saloon trade and the deeper they dug the more gold they discovered.

The first pieces of ore found showed bubbles of free gold on the surface, apparently having been roasted. This was believed to have been done when the saloon burned down several years ago.

The free gold first attracted the attention of the prospectors. Samples of the ore show values ranging from $8 in the wall rock to 600 ounces in the vein core. A shipment of 110 pounds sent to a sampler settled for 45.48 ounces gold to the ton.

Bedrock was struck but ore continued and the prospectors discovered that the former refreshment parlor had been built over the junction of two well-defined veins. Preparations are now being made for sinking of a shaft and continuing operations "at the old stand."

COUNCIL HERE MEETS MONDAY

Annual Report Will be Presented by Mayor Frank Albrecht.

Lisbon village council will hold its last meeting for 1925 Monday night.

Councilmen elected at the November election will take their seats at a meeting to be held Monday evening, January 4.

Mayor Frank E. Albrecht, Democrat, who was elected two years ago will be succeeded by Robert P. Clark, Republican, who was elected November last, and who by virtue of his office will preside at all future council meetings.

A caucus of the new councilmen-elect is proposed at an early date, which will include Mayor-elect Clark.

George Groves, who was elected marshal in November will be named Chief of Police of Lisbon by Mayor Clark, and he will succeed Dave Eells who has been serving in this capacity since the resignation of Chief of Police H. L. Lewton several months ago.

Councilmen-elect at their proposed caucus plan to discuss a line of policy that will be followed during 1925 and 1927. It is said that the new council will give particular attention to the Lisbon street situation next year, and it has already been stated that a number of streets will be given the repair that has been lacking. North Market and Washington strets will come in for first attention.

Mayor Albrecht is expected to present his annual report at the meeting Monday night.

Lloyd C. Binsley, who has been serving as clerk will continue in office as he was re-elected in November.

AUTO ACCIDENT RESULTS IN SUIT

As a result of an automobile accident on the Patterson road in Mahoning county at 8:30 o'clock the evening of Oct. 9 last, two damage actions have been entered in common pleas court against Herbert McConnell, 137 Mill stret, Salem, one petition claiming $5,000 damages and another wherein $500 damages is sought.

The petition filed by Christina Anderson of Alliance, relates that she was a passenger in an automobile being driven east on the Patterscn road, and that the car in which she was riding was owned by William Anderson, but was being driven by David Anderson. She declares that the car in which she was riding was being driven east and the car being driven by McConnell in a westerly direction turned suddenly southward, and forced the car she was riding in across the road and over a steep embankment. The plaintiff claims that she was injured by the wreck, and was confined to her bed. In this petition, $5,000 damage is sought.

William Anderson asks $500 for the wrecked car.

MORE CASES FOR NEXT GRAND JURY

Additional work for the January grand jury was filed with Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine yesterday when Mayor George Russell of Salem filed 15 new transcripts for entrance on the criminal court appearance docket.

Four charges are pending against Harold Thompson, and four have been filed against Charles Rogers. Three charges have been filed against Shelly Carlisle of Lisbon, who was arrested in Salem, and two charges are against Clarence Votaw. One charge each has been filed against Charles Prezzia and also Jess Callahan. With these additional transcripts a total of 38 have already been filed.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Charging her husband with three years wilful absence, and also extreme cruelty, Tillie A. Willis has filed her petition in common pleas court seeking a divorce from Joseph F. Willis. The couple were married in Lisbon, Oct. 10, 1910. Willis is said to be residing at 302 South Third street, Steubenville.

Premises Ordered Sold.

The premises have been ordered sold in the case of Emmett Leroy Thomas against Sarah Sanor, according to a journay entry received by Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine from Judge John B. Worley of Cadiz, who heard the issues during his last week of service in this county. The court has modified the findings of the referee in this case by reducing the amount of rents charged in the sum of $350.

The deed has been set aside and cancelled as to Olive Christ. The report of the commissioners in this case has been confirmed, and the premises have been ordered sold according to law.

To Disburse Savings.

Between 25,000 and $50,000 Christmas saving funds will be released by the People's Savings bank and the Firestone bank of Lisbon about Dec. 18, it has been announced. The amount to be distributed is considerably larger than last year.

Sues on Note.

Claiming there is $200 due them on a note issued June 20, 1922, an action has been entered in common pleas court by Guy and H. W. Slusser doing business as the Alliance Nash Co. against W. R. Shockley, who resides in this county. Interest on the note and judgment for the full amount is sought in the petition.

Case Dismissed.

The divorce action filed in common pleas court by Anne Nelson against her husband, John Nelson, and which was set for trial before Judge James G. Moore, has been dismissed from the record for want of prosecution.

AUTO ACCIDENT RESULTS IN SUIT

As a result of an automobile accident on the Patterson road in Mahoning county at 8:30 o'clock the evening of Oct. 9 last, two damage actions have been entered in common pleas court against Herbert McConnell, 137 Mill stret, Salem, one petition claiming $5,000 damages and another wherein $500 damages is sought.

The petition filed by Christina Anderson of Alliance, relates that she was a passenger in an automobile being driven east on the Patterson road, and that the car in which she was riding was owned by William Anderson, but was being driven by David Anderson. She declares that the car in which she was riding was being driven east and the car being driven by McConnell in a westerly direction turned suddenly southward, and forced the car she was riding in across the road and over a steep embankment. The plaintiff claims that she was injured by the wreck, and was confined to her bed. In this petition, $5,000 damage is sought.

William Anderson asks $500 for the wrecked car.

Premises Ordered Sold.

The premises have been ordered sold in the case of Emmett Leroy Thomas against Sarah Sanor, according to a journay entry received by Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine from Judge John B. Worley of Cadiz, who heard the issues during his last week of service in this county. The court has modified the findings of the referee in this case by reducing the amount of rents charged in the sum of $350.

The deed has been set aside and cancelled as to Olive Christ. The report of the commissioners in this case has been confirmed, and the premises have been ordered sold according to law.

To Disburse Savings.

Between 25,000 and $50,000 Christmas saving funds will be released by the People's Savings bank and the Firestone bank of Lisbon about Dec. 18, it has been announced. The amount to be distributed is considerably larger than last year.

R Shockley, who resides in this county. Interest on the note and judgment for the full amount is sought in the petition.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By Norman E. Brown

Will the smaller minor baseball leagues find a solution to their financial problems in cutting down their playing days to three days a week—Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays?

George Texter, president of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League, just formed on a permanent basis in that section, believes it will. The Mid-Atlantic League tried out the idea last season and found it a profitable move, compared to a daily schedule.

Such a schedule obviously eliminates the "weak" days for crowds, Monday, Tuesday and Friday. The latter day always has been a notoriously weak one, even in the big leagues, where "ladies' days" have been instituted for that very reason.

The poor attendance is doubly ruinous to the small minor league teams because of the overhead in keeping a team quartered away from home on those days. These outfits have not the financial backing of the bigger organizations and must depend upon the gate receipts for current expenses in the main.

The O-P League, under Texter's direction, will have to give the system a thorough tryout. The league will be an eight-club affair and play in the principal industrial centers of the two states, including Cleveland, Akron, Youngstown, New Castle Sharon, Erie, Canton and Massilon. At least five other clubs are anxious to join the organization under the plan mapped out.

The O-P magnates are also leading a campaign to place these so-called "semi-pro" teams under the protection and supervision of the national association, to the end that the backers may be protected, the clubs receive a fair remuneration for players signed by the higher circuits and the circuits be cleaned of all taint of "outlawry."

This matter has been placed before John H. Farrell, secretary of the national association and the help of Commissioner Landis sought.

GOTHAM AWAITS GRANGE DEBUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Officials of the New York Giants declared today that they expected to dispose of their last ticket before 4 o'clock this afternoon, insuring a capacity crowd of 70,000 for the Harold "Red" Grange's New York debut at the Polo grounds tomorrow afternoon. Grange will appear in the lineup of the Chicago Bears against the local Giants in a National Football league contest and, although he will have the support of many famous college stars of other days, the New York team was the favorite.

An almost continuous rain throughout the week left the gridiron heavy, in spite of efforts to protect it. It was on a muddy field, however, that Grange ran wild against Pennsylvania.

The local team left early today for Philadelphia to watch the Bears play the Frankfort Yellow Jackets in order to get a line on the speedster from Illinois.

SIX MUST O. K. RETURN MATCH

So Hagenlacher's Protest May Kill Cue Tilt.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It developed today that the sanction of the six international stars who took part in the 18.2 balkline billiard championship last year was necessary before Edouard Horemans and Jake Schaefer, the new and dethroned champions respectively, could play a return match for the title next month.

This was taken to mean here that the match would have to be abandoned as Erich Hagenlacher, of Germany, has entered a protest against the match, claiming that his prior challenge entitles him to the next shot at the title.

Horemans, Schaefer and Willie Hoppe already have signed the agreement, it is said, while replies are awaited from Welker Cochran and Kamekichi Suzuki, of Japan. However, since a unanimous agreement is necessary, Hagenlacher's protest already is believed to have killed the return match.

PIGNATORE ON ALL-STAR TEAM

The performance of Wally Pignatore, Wellsville's scholastic fullback, against Steubenville on Thanksgiving day at Central park so impressed Steubenville followers that a number of them, compiling an all-star team of players of the Steubenville eleven and teams which the Stubbers have played this year, awarded the palm to Pignatore as a halfback.

They made their selections as follows:

L. E.—Whittekind, Marietta.
L. T.—Henry, Steubenville.
L. G.—Henning, Canton.
C. — Barrett, Youngstown.
R. G.—DeMayo, Steubenville.
R. T.—Carmichael, Johnstown.
R. E.—Stephan, Marietta.
Q. B.—Bailey, Youngstown.
L. H.—Murphy, Youngstown.
R. H.—Pignatore, Wellsville.
F. B.—Welch, Steubenville.

M'MANUS, DYKES NAMED IN RUMORED YANK DEAL

Pilot Huggins Comes Out With Statement That a Major League Second Baseman, Identity Withheld, Already Has Been Acquired by New York Americans.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Rumors that Marty McManus, of the St. Louis Browns, or Jimmy Dykes, of the Philadelphia Athletics, had been acquired by the New York Yankees in a comprehensive player trade were wafted about Broadway today, following the statement of Miller Huggins that a major league second baseman, identity withheld, already was the property of the local outfit. Aaron Ward and Wally Pipp were said to have figured in the transactions, although what the Browns would want with either was not made altogether clear.

The boys, as a matter of fact, had to pick a second baseman from the field and decided to make him a good one.

Leslie Burke, of the Detroit Tigers; Harold Spurgeon, of the Cleveland Indians; Spencer Adams, of the Washington Senators, and Emory Rigney, another Tiger, also were nominated, it being the logical idea that if you named enough names you couldn't miss.

Of course, neither Rigney nor Spurgeon is a second baseman, at least not of recent vintage, but the boys will be boys. They don't seem to care what they do with another man's life.

There seemed to be no doubt, however, that the deal had been made. In fact, our Mr. Huggins came out on his flat feet and said that it had. He also declared that a class AA pitcher of skill and distinction had been added to the list of hired hands. But then he immediately stopped talking with his mouth, leaving some of our best journalistic minds to do their worst.

One of them lost no time in naming Spencer Adams as the man. That is silly on the face of it. The Yanks and Senators have no common trading ground on which to meet, both needing a shortstop. Besides, it is the writer's understanding that Adams is not exactly a bargain.

Neither is it likely that McManus could be lured away from St. Louis, although the young man is said to be dissatisfied. However, such a transaction would depend on what the Yanks could give and it wouldn't be too much. McManus is a better second baseman than Ward. Sisler, it is rumored or alleged, is a better first baseman than Pipp. The only trading material left on this end consists of Wally Schang and several so-called pitchers. Waite Hoyt, of course, might prove attractive to St. Louis but not at the expense of losing McManus.

The Cleviand angle seems the most plausible, at that. Although denials have been made from both clubs, the general understanding is that a Yankee-Indian deal of some kind has been in the making. It may have been closed. In their present position, neither club can go wrong and the Indians undoubtedly could use Pipp at first base.

The report involving Burke or Rigney is possible, simply that. Cobb, however, is a hard man to do business with on a trade. As for the Dykes rumor, it is only acceptable if Joe Hauser, first baseman, has not recovered from the injury that kept him out of the game for the entire season of 1925.

COPS WIN ROUND WITH DIXIE KID

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., Dec. 5.—Aaron Brown, 42, a negro welterweight prize fighter widely known as "the Dixie Kid," was to be arraigned today on a burglary charge.

He was arrested near his home here, charged with attempting to enter the home of William Brennan.

"The Dixie Kid" claims to have defeated Georges Carpentier in Paris in 1911, and to have fought Sam Langford and George Wolcott. He is now employed as a boxing instructor.

SOCCER LEAGUE AWARDS TITLE

Sec. Fairfield Confirms Laughlin Championship.

Confirmation of Homer Laughlin soccer club's championship of the Pittsburgh Press Northwest Division Soccer League was received yesterday by officials of the pottery eleven which went through the league season without a defeat, beating out the strong Ellwood City, Pa., team by a single point.

H. H. Fairfield, secretary of the circuit, announced that the undisputed championship had been awardeded officially to the Laughlins.

Local soccer followers regard the accomplishment of the Laughlin eleven as something of a feat, inasmuch as the Pennsylvania city had held the title for three successive years.

The cup, symbolical of the championship, will be brought to East Liverpool within the near future and placed on display in a local sporting goods store.

District fans have seen the last home game of the local eleven, officials of the club announced today, although plans are under way for two games on the road.

A number of local soccer followers are planning to attend the national cup tie game Sunday at Steubenville between the Morgan, Pa., and the La-Belle elevens. The game will be staged on the West Virginia side of the river, on a diamond adjoining the old O. & P. grounds.

The final Northwest division league standing is announced officially as follows:

British Pug Denies Reported Criticism Of American Morals

NE WYORK, Dec. 5.—Before departing today to begin training at Clifton, Mass., for his welterweight championship match with Mickey Walker on January 22, Tommy Milligan, of England, took occasion to enter a flat denial that he had criticized American morals, as quoted in dispatches from abroad.

"I have only the kindliest feelings toward and the greatest admiration for the American people," Milligan said.

"It has never entered my head to criticize America or Americans in any way. I was treated royally when I was here before and my appreciation is deep and sincere."

Hagenlacher Protests

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Erich Hagenlacher, German's champ balk line billiardist, has entered a protest against a return match for the title between Schaefer and Horemans within 30 days. He asserts he already had a challenge in against the winner of the original Horemans-Schaefer match.

Will Cover Grid Field

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 5.—A huge rubberized cover, costing between $10,000 and $12,000, is planned for the football field of the University of Illinois. Made of the same material used by baseball clubs, it will be used for the prevention of muddy fields in wet weather.

At least five other clubs are anxious to join the organization under the plan mapped out.

The O-P magnates are also leading a campaign to place these so-called "semi-pro" teams under the protection and supervision of the national association, to the end that the backers may be protected, the clubs receive a fair remuneration for players signed by the higher circuits and the circuits be cleaned of all taint of "outlawry."

This matter has been placed before John H. Farrell, secretary of the national association and the help of Commissioner Landis sought.

After rolling two great games, White, of Hall China Industrial Duckpin league quintet, dropped off to a 96 in last night's games with Smith News at the Liberty alleys, and lost a glorious opportunity to set a new league record for total series scores.

White shot a 217 in the first game and a 141 in the second and then, needing only a score of 120 odd pins, was able to get but 96. At that he rolled up a total of 454. The Smith quint took two out of the three matches and tied with Halls for third place.

GOTHAM AWAITS GRANGE DEBUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Officials of the New York Giants declared today that they expected to dispose of their last ticket before 4 o'clock this afternoon, insuring a capacity crowd of 70,000 for the Harold "Red" Grange's New York debut at the Polo grounds tomorrow afternoon. Grange will appear in the lineup of the Chicago Bears against the local Giants in a National Football league contest and, although he will have the support of many famous college stars of other days, the New York team was the favorite.

An almost continuous rain throughout the week left the gridiron heavy, in spite of efforts to protect it. It was on a muddy field, however, that Grange ran wild against Pennsylvania.

The local team left early today for Philadelphia to watch the Bears play the Frankfort Yellow Jackets in order to get a line on the speedster from Illinois.

Last Night's Fights

At New York—Corporal Izzy Schwartz, New York, got the decision over Ernie Jarvis, England, ten rounds. Johnny Breslin, New York, got the decision over Bobby Ruttenberg, Reading, Pa., ten rounds. Young Dencio, Philippine islands, got the decision over Joe Dillon, New York, ten rounds. Benny Marks, Brooklyn, got the decision over Johnny Mayo, Philadelphia, six rounds.

At Grand Rapids, Mich. — Young Stribling, of Atlanta, got decision over Tommy Burns, of Detroit, ten rounds. Lyle Devoignes, of Kalamazoo, Mich., shaded Jack O'Neill, of Duluth, Minn., six rounds. Al Massey, of Muskegon, Mich, and Nick Ellingwood, of Fort Wayne, Ind., draw six rounds.

SIX MUST O. K. RETURN MATCH

So Hagenlacher's Protest May Kill Cue Tilt.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It developed today that the sanction of the six international stars who took part in the 18.2 balkline billiard championship last year was necessary before Edouard Horemans and Jake Schaefer, the new and dethroned champions respectively, could play a return match for the title next month.

This was taken to mean here that the match would have to be abandoned as Erich Hagenlacher, of Germany, has entered a protest against the match, claiming that his prior challenge entitles him to the next shot at the title.

Horemans, Schaefer and Willie Hoppe already have signed the agreement, it is said, while replies are awaited from Welker Cochran and Kamekichi Suzuki, of Japan. However, since a unanimous agreement is necessary, Hagenlacher's protest already is believed to have killed the return match.

PIGNATORE ON ALL-STAR TEAM

The performance of Wally Pignatore, Wellsville's scholastic fullback, against Steubenville on Thanksgiving day at Central park so impressed Steubenville followers that a number of them, compiling an all-star team of players of the Steubenville eleven and teams which the Stubbers have played this year, awarded the palm to Pignatore as a halfback.

They made their selections as follows:

L. E.—Whittekind, Marietta.
L. T.—Henry, Steubenville.
L. G.—Henning, Canton.
C. — Barrett, Youngstown.
R. G.—DeMayo, Steubenville.
R. T.—Carmichael, Johnstown.
R. E.—Stephan, Marietta.
Q. B.—Bailey, Youngstown.
L. H.—Murphy, Youngstown.
R. H.—Pignatore, Wellsville.
F. B.—Welch, Steubenville.

M'MANUS, DYKES NAMED IN RUMORED YANK DEAL

Pilot Huggins Comes Out With Statement That a Major League Second Baseman, Identity Withheld, Already Has Been Acquired by New York Americans.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Rumors that Marty McManus, of the St. Louis Browns, or Jimmy Dykes, of the Philadelphia Athletics, had been acquired by the New York Yankees in a comprehensive player trade were wafted about Broadway today, following the statement of Miller Huggins that a major league second baseman, identity withheld, already was the property of the local outfit. Aaron Ward and Wally Pipp were said to have figured in the transactions, although what the Browns would want with either was not made altogether clear.

The boys, as a matter of fact, had to pick a second baseman from the field and decided to make him a good one.

Leslie Burke, of the Detroit Tigers; Harold Spurgeon, of the Cleveland Indians; Spencer Adams, of the Washington Senators, and Emory Rigney, another Tiger, also were nominated, it being the logical idea that if you named enough names you couldn't miss.

Of course, neither Rigney nor Spurgeon is a second baseman, at least not of recent vintage, but the boys will be boys. They don't seem to care what they do with another man's life.

There seemed to be no doubt, however, that the deal had been made. In fact, our Mr. Huggins came out on his flat feet and said that it had. He also declared that a class AA pitcher of skill and distinction had been added to the list of hired hands. But then he immediately stopped talking with his mouth, leaving some of our best journalistic minds to do their worst.

One of them lost no time in naming Spencer Adams as the man. That is silly on the face of it. The Yanks and Senators have no common trading ground on which to meet, both needing a shortstop. Besides, it is the writer's understanding that Adams is not exactly a bargain.

Neither is it likely that McManus could be lured away from St. Louis, although the young man is said to be dissatisfied. However, such a transaction would depend on what the Yanks could give and it wouldn't be too much. McManus is a better second baseman than Ward. Sisler, it is rumored or alleged, is a better first baseman than Pipp. The only trading material left on this end consists of Wally Schang and several so-called pitchers. Waite Hoyt, of course, might prove attractive to St. Louis but not at the expense of losing McManus.

The Cleviand angle seems the most plausible, at that. Although denials have been made from both clubs, the general understanding is that a Yankee-Indian deal of some kind has been in the making. It may have been closed. In their present position, neither club can go wrong and the Indians undoubtedly could use Pipp at first base.

The report involving Burke or Rigney is possible, simply that. Cobb, however, is a hard man to do business with on a trade. As for the Dykes rumor, it is only acceptable if Joe Hauser, first baseman, has not recovered from the injury that kept him out of the game for the entire season of 1925.

COPS WIN ROUND WITH DIXIE KID

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., Dec. 5.—Aaron Brown, 42, a negro welterweight prize fighter widely known as "the Dixie Kid," was to be arraigned today on a burglary charge.

He was arrested near his home here, charged with attempting to enter the home of William Brennan.

"The Dixie Kid" claims to have defeated Georges Carpentier in Paris in 1911, and to have fought Sam Langford and George Wolcott. He is now employed as a boxing instructor.

SOCCER LEAGUE AWARDS TITLE

Sec. Fairfield Confirms Laughlin Championship.

Confirmation of Homer Laughlin soccer club's championship of the Pittsburgh Press Northwest Division Soccer League was received yesterday by officials of the pottery eleven which went through the league season without a defeat, beating out the strong Ellwood City, Pa., team by a single point.

H. H. Fairfield, secretary of the circuit, announced that the undisputed championship had been awardeded officially to the Laughlins.

Local soccer followers regard the accomplishment of the Laughlin eleven as something of a feat, inasmuch as the Pennsylvania city had held the title for three successive years.

The cup, symbolical of the championship, will be brought to East Liverpool within the near future and placed on display in a local sporting goods store.

District fans have seen the last home game of the local eleven, officials of the club announced today, although plans are under way for two games on the road.

A number of local soccer followers are planning to attend the national cup tie game Sunday at Steubenville between the Morgan, Pa., and the La-Belle elevens. The game will be staged on the West Virginia side of the river, on a diamond adjoining the old O. & P. grounds.

The final Northwest division league standing is announced officially as follows:

British Pug Denies Reported Criticism Of American Morals

NE WYORK, Dec. 5.—Before departing today to begin training at Clifton, Mass., for his welterweight championship match with Mickey Walker on January 22, Tommy Milligan, of England, took occasion to enter a flat denial that he had criticised American morals, as quoted in dispatches from abroad.

"I have only the kindliest feelings toward and the greatest admiration for the American people," Milligan said.

"It has never entered my head to criticize America or Americans in any way. I was treated royally when I was here before and my appreciation is deep and sincere."

GLENMORE TRIMS ACES IN OPENER

Opening their 1925-26 cage campaign last night on the Glenmore Athletic club court, the Glenmore quintet swamped the Aces, 43 to 17, with E. Allison, who caged the oval 11 times, and Graham, with seven two pointers, leading th eattack.

The lineups:

Glenmore.		Aces.
C. Allison	F	Kind
Graham	F	Manypenny
C. Foutts	C	Anthony
Rose	G	R. Foutts
E. Allison	G	Dyer

Substitution—D. Glenn for Rose.

Field goals—E. Allison 11, Graham 7, C. Foutts 2, Green, Manypenny, Kind, Anthony, Dyer 5.

Fouls—Graham, Kind.

Referee, Graham; timer, Glenn.

Hagenlacher Protests

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Erich Hagenlacher, German's champ balk line billiardist, has entered a protest against a return match for the title between Schaefer and Horemans within 30 days. He asserts he already had a challenge in against the winner of the original Horemans-Schaefer match.

Will Cover Grid Field

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 5.—A huge rubberized cover, costing between $10,000 and $12,000, is planned for the football field of the University of Illinois. Made of the same material used by baseball clubs, it will be used for the prevention of muddy fields in wet weather.

Won't Desert Cornell

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Gil Doble has no intention of retiring as coach of Cornell football teams. He so announced when questioned concerning a report that he had been approached to become head coach at the University of Oregon.

Deny Offer to Smith

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Denial that Columbia is seeking the services of Andy Smith, University of California football coach, has been made in taking cognizance of the report that Smith had been offered a three-year contract at $15,000 a year, to come here.

Plans School Circuit

FINDLAY, Dec. 5.—Athletic Director James W. Aiken, of Findlay high, has submitted to high schools a plan for a Big Ten high school football circuit to take in Findlay, Toledo, Scott, Dayton Stivers, Middletown, Youngstown South, Canton McKinley, Mount Vernon, Cleveland Lakewood, Lima Central and Springfield.

-Now you can buy a PEERLESS for $1595

SCORES of present Peerless owners were invited to the factory to view and test the first of these low price 6-80 Sedans. Each was given a ride—over roads of every condition—up steep and tortuous hills. Each was placed at the wheel and told to test the car in his own way.

Then each was asked "What price will we put on this car?"

Without exception, every answer was hundreds of dollars higher than the amazing low price of $1595. No one could believe it possible that Peerless could build such exceptional value and yet offer it at a price so remarkably low.

Designed for Comfort

Peerless Engineers designed this advanced 6-80 to meet a modern need for a car of short wheel base, yet with abundant body room of exceptional sturdiness for safe, dependable riding.

A 116 inch wheelbase assures ability to turn within a 40 foot circle. Any woman can turn this car on any city street—surely, easily, quickly. Yet to look at this car you would think that it was 8 or 10 inches longer.

The motor has a seven-bearing crankshaft and its smooth, steady action is further refined by a Lanchester dampener—a combination of engineering precision designed to entirely eliminate vibration.

Take any hill on high in this new 6-80 Sedan. Go from 5 to 25 miles in seven seconds.

Speed well up to 70 miles an hour and experience a new understanding of what this modern Peerless motor will do without vibration. Its pick-up is always ahead of the other fellow.

Many Finished Details

Seats—low, deep and set at just the correct comfort angle. You sit at ease as you drive or ride in this Peerless Six Sedan. Throughout, the fabric is of a fine grade of mohair. The finish is enduring Lacquer.

"IS ZAT SO?" CHASES WORRY

Sensational Comedy Success Booked by Ceramic.

The offering at the Ceramic theatre Friday evening, Dec. 11, will be the new American comedy, "Is Zat So?" from the pens of James Gleason and Richard Taber, which is said to be so far removed from the beaten path that it is a revelation in theme. It is said to be exactly the kind of a show one wants to see when seeking mental and physical relaxation and wishes to forget all his troubles, as dull care can no more persist in the presence of "Is Zat So?" than a snow ball can persist in July.

Characterized by fine appreciation of stage vlues, with touches of emotionalism, and quick changes from comedy to drama and back to comedy are said to make the performances of Richard Taber, co-author of the piece, as "Chick" Cowan, the prize boxer, and Hale Norcross as "Hap" Hurley, his manager, unforgetable pictures of men of rough exteriors but with hearts of gold.

Earle Boothe, in association with the Messrs. Shubert, will bring the complete Chicago organization, which recently closed a triumphant engagement of six months in the western metropolis, for presentation of the comedy at the Ceramic theatre.

A road tunnel to connect Liverpool and Birkenhead, passing under the River Mersey at its narrowest part, is to be constructed at a cost of $26,000,000.

Feathers shipped in the last year from the United States to Great Britain before they had been dressed weighed 1,000,000 pounds and were valued at $91,000.

"IS ZAT SO?" CHASES WORRY

Sensational Comedy Success Booked by Ceramic.

The offering at the Ceramic theatre Friday evening, Dec. 11, will be the new American comedy, "Is Zat So?" from the pens of James Gleason and Richard Taber, which is said to be so far removed from the beaten path that it is a revelation in theme. It is said to be exactly the kind of a show one wants to see when seeking mental and physical relaxation and wishes to forget all his troubles, as dull care can no more persist in the presence of "Is Zat So?" than a snow ball can persist in July.

Characterized by fine appreciation of stage vlues, with touches of emotionalism, and quick changes from comedy to drama and back to comedy are said to make the performances of Richard Taber, co-author of the piece, as "Chick" Cowan, the prize boxer, and Hale Norcross as "Hap" Hurley, his manager, unforgetable pictures of men of rough exteriors but with hearts of gold.

Earle Boothe, in association with the Messrs. Shubert, will bring the complete Chicago organization, which recently closed a triumphant engagement of six months in the western metropolis, for presentation of the comedy at the Ceramic theatre.

A road tunnel to connect Liverpool and Birkenhead, passing under the River Mersey at its narrowest part, is to be constructed at a cost of $26,000,000.

Feathers shipped in the last year from the United States to Great Britain before they had been dressed weighed 1,000,000 pounds and were valued at $91,000.

WEIRTON MILL TO BE ENLARGED

Ground Will be Broken Soon For Additions to Plant.

That ground will be broken for the new expansion project of the Weirton Steel company within a short time was indicated yesterday by J. C. Williams, general superintendent of the plant.

Actual building operations are not scheduled to commence until next spring, he said, but the company may go ahead, perhaps by the middle of next week and begin excavation work.

Engineers of the Pennsylvania railroad company were in Weirton recently surveying the ground for the proposed expansion, in which the Pennsylvania facilities will have a large part in taking care of the expansion of the mills.

The ground, which will be broken first, will include the sites of the blast furnace, open hearth and sheet mill projects, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars during next summer.

Pastors to Conduct Meets.

Pastors will be in charge of the services tomorrow morning and evening in the various local churches. Special musical programs will be given by several of the choirs.

The law also provides that the commission, upon not less than five days notice in writing, and after due hearing, may revoke the license of any operator or chauffeur convicted of any offense against the motor vehicle laws, and that upon due proof of a second conviction, the commission shall revoke the license.

Licenses are not revoked by the commission following a first conviction for a minor offense, but for the offense of driving while intoxicated.

The Pennsylvania railroad filed a protest today with the state utilities commission against the licensing of a proposed bus line to operate between Salineville and East Liverpool.

The railroad company claims that it has adequate facilities to handle passenger traffic between the two points and asks that the application be rejected.

Protest is Filed Against Proposed District Bus Line

The Pennsylvania railroad filed a protest today with the state utilities commission against the licensing of a proposed bus line to operate between Salineville and East Liverpool.

A party of Salineville men plan the inauguration of a bus line between the two cities upon completion of the road improvement between Wellsville and Salineville. The railroad company claims that it has adequate facilities to handle passenger traffic between the two points and asks that the application be rejected.

For Winter Driving
Balanced Gasoline Is Best

Cold weather ahead. Time now to think about the added burden it places on your motor . . . Difficulties in starting. Slow warming up. Oil dilution. Extra strain on bearings. The possibility of a big overhauling expense in the spring. These things should be . . . can be . . . guarded against now. Here's how . . .

(1) Change from summer oil to a good winter oil . . . the best you can find. That's Marathon medium.

(2) Use gasoline that is equally efficient at low and high temperatures. That MARATHON.
